Dedication

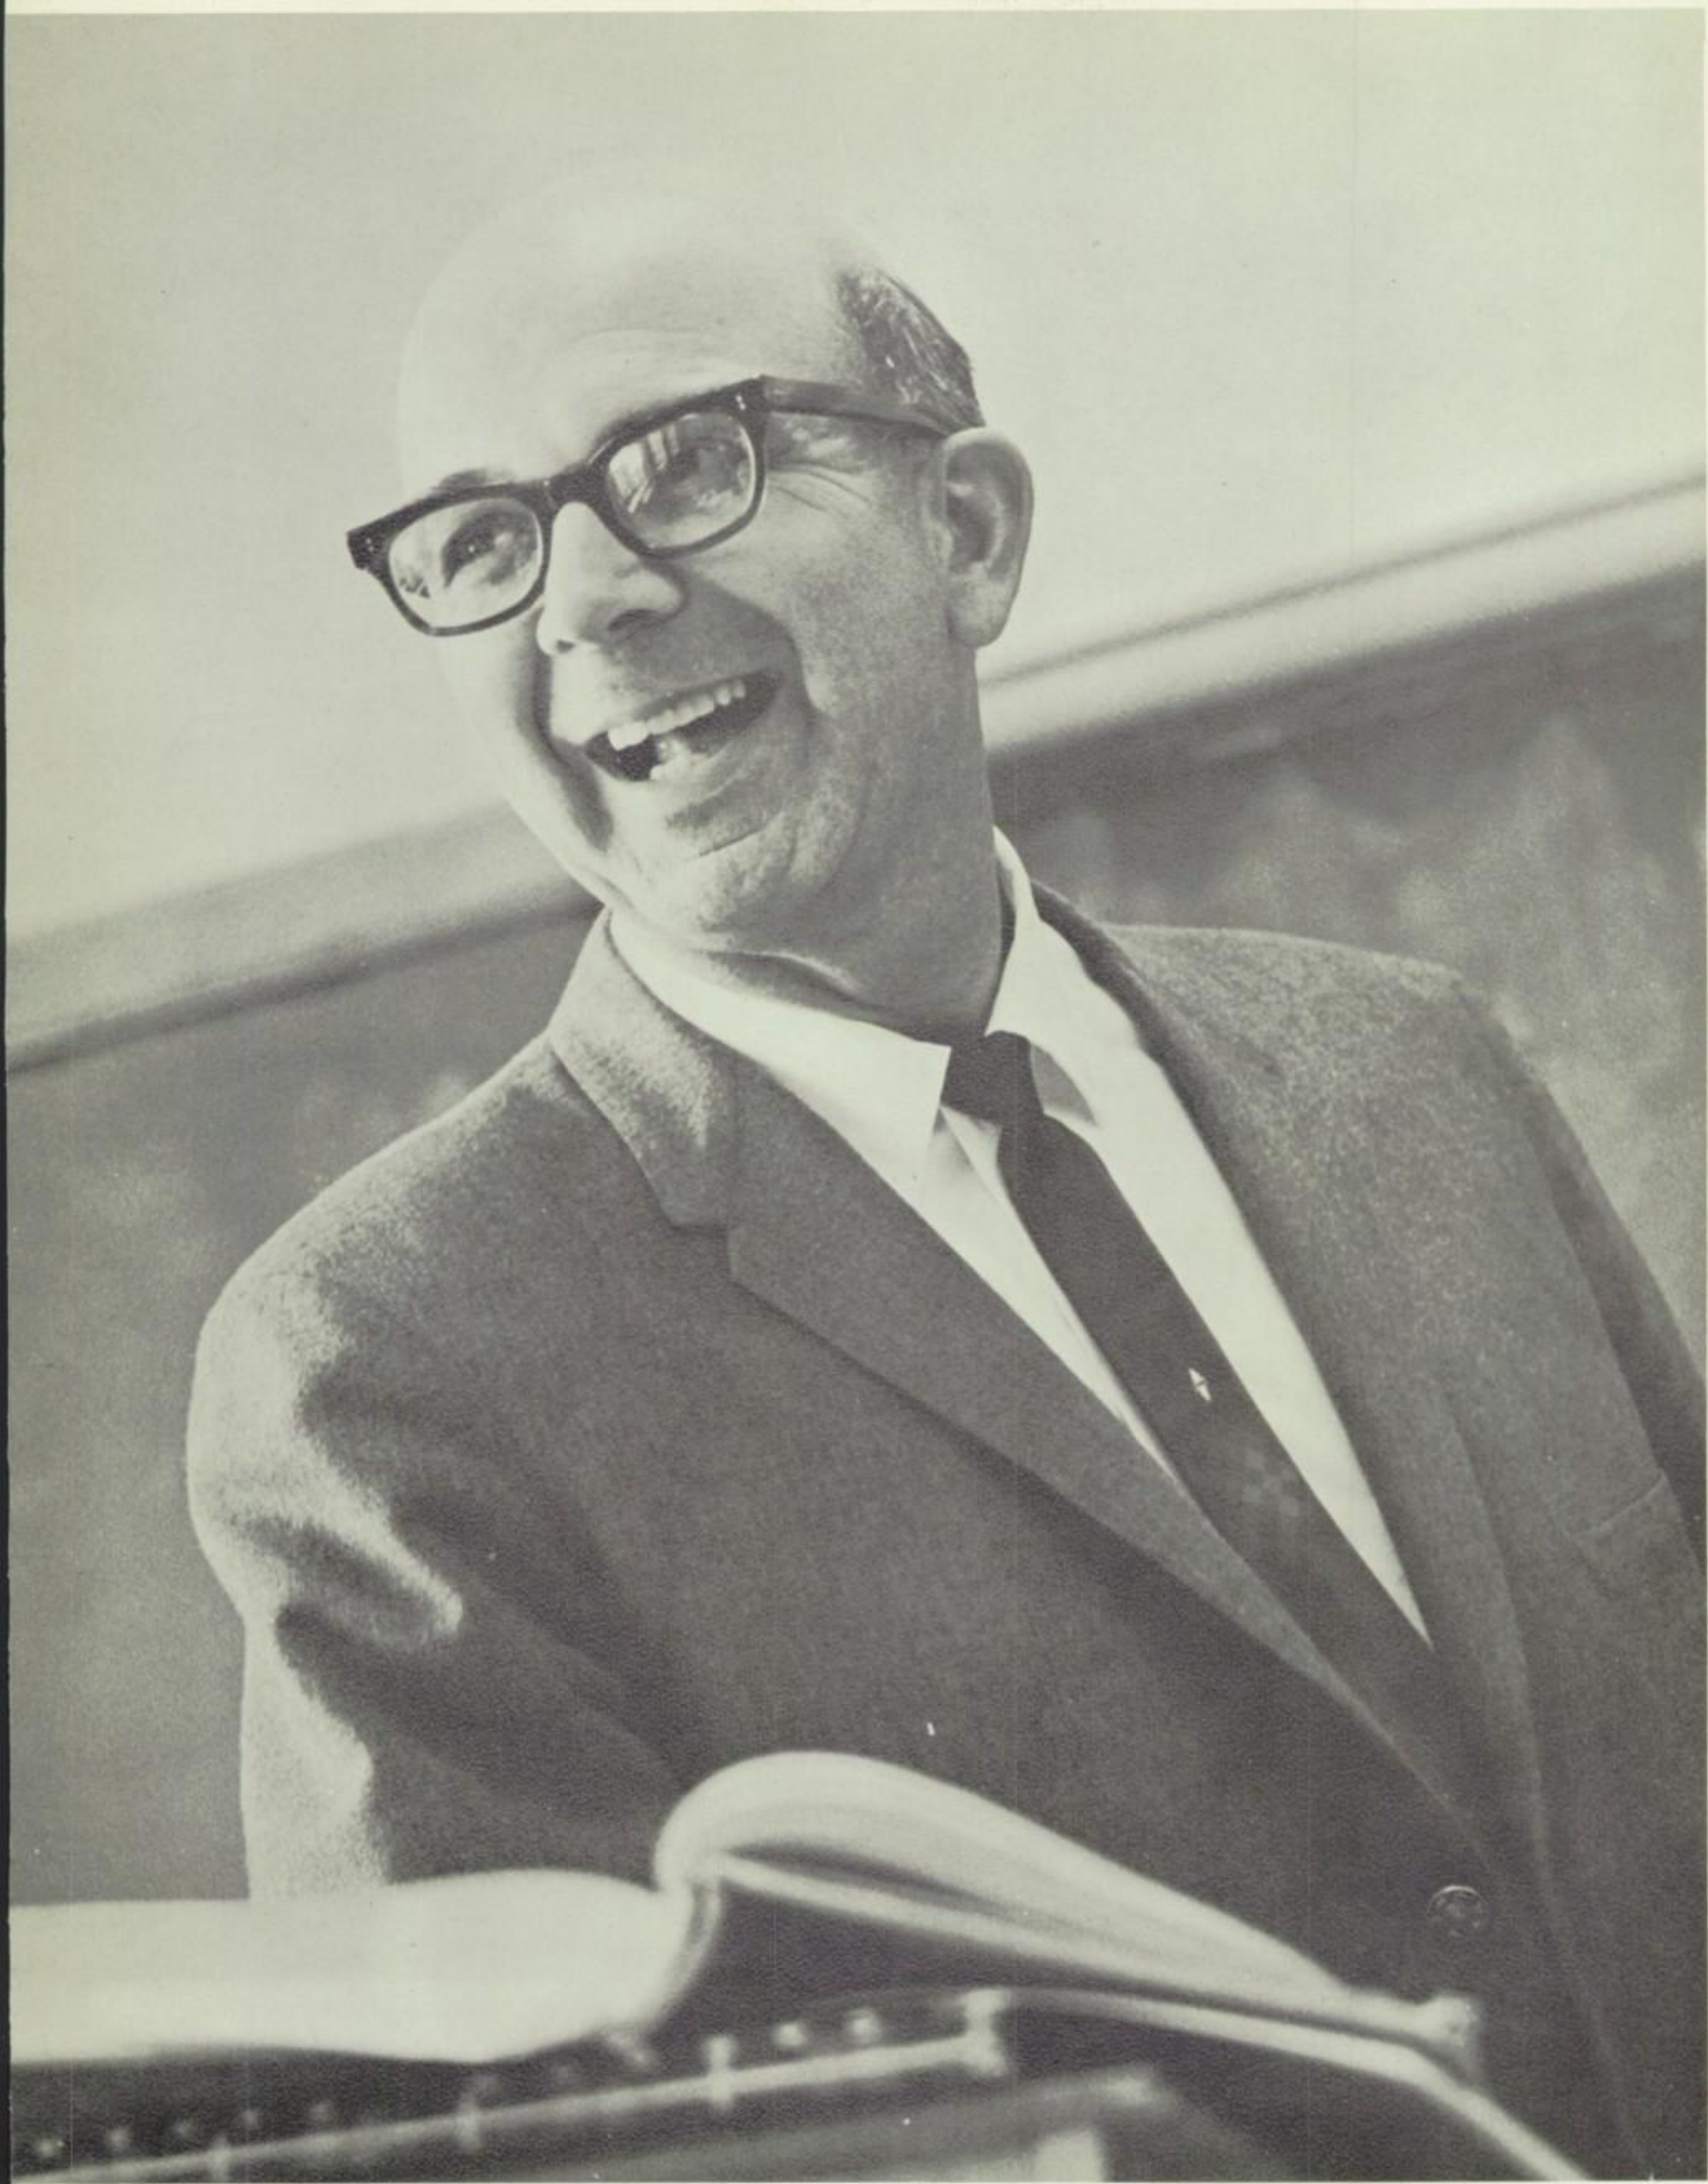

Ellsworth Mitick

Mr. Mitick, a former North High student, came to South in 1949 after teaching for several years in Wray and Wheatridge, Colorado. He received his B.A. degree at the University of Colorado in 1937 and his M.A. in 1947 at the University of Denver.

Throughout his years of teaching, Mr. Mitick has received many high honors. In 1956 he was selected as an exchange teacher to England. Under a John Hay Fellowship Award he attended Williams College, and later represented the National Council for the Teachers of English at the Seventh National Conference for UNESCO. He has been repeatedly recognized in the state for the outstanding performances of his students in discussion and debate. This ability skillfully guides and enriches the interests of those in the Debate Club at South.

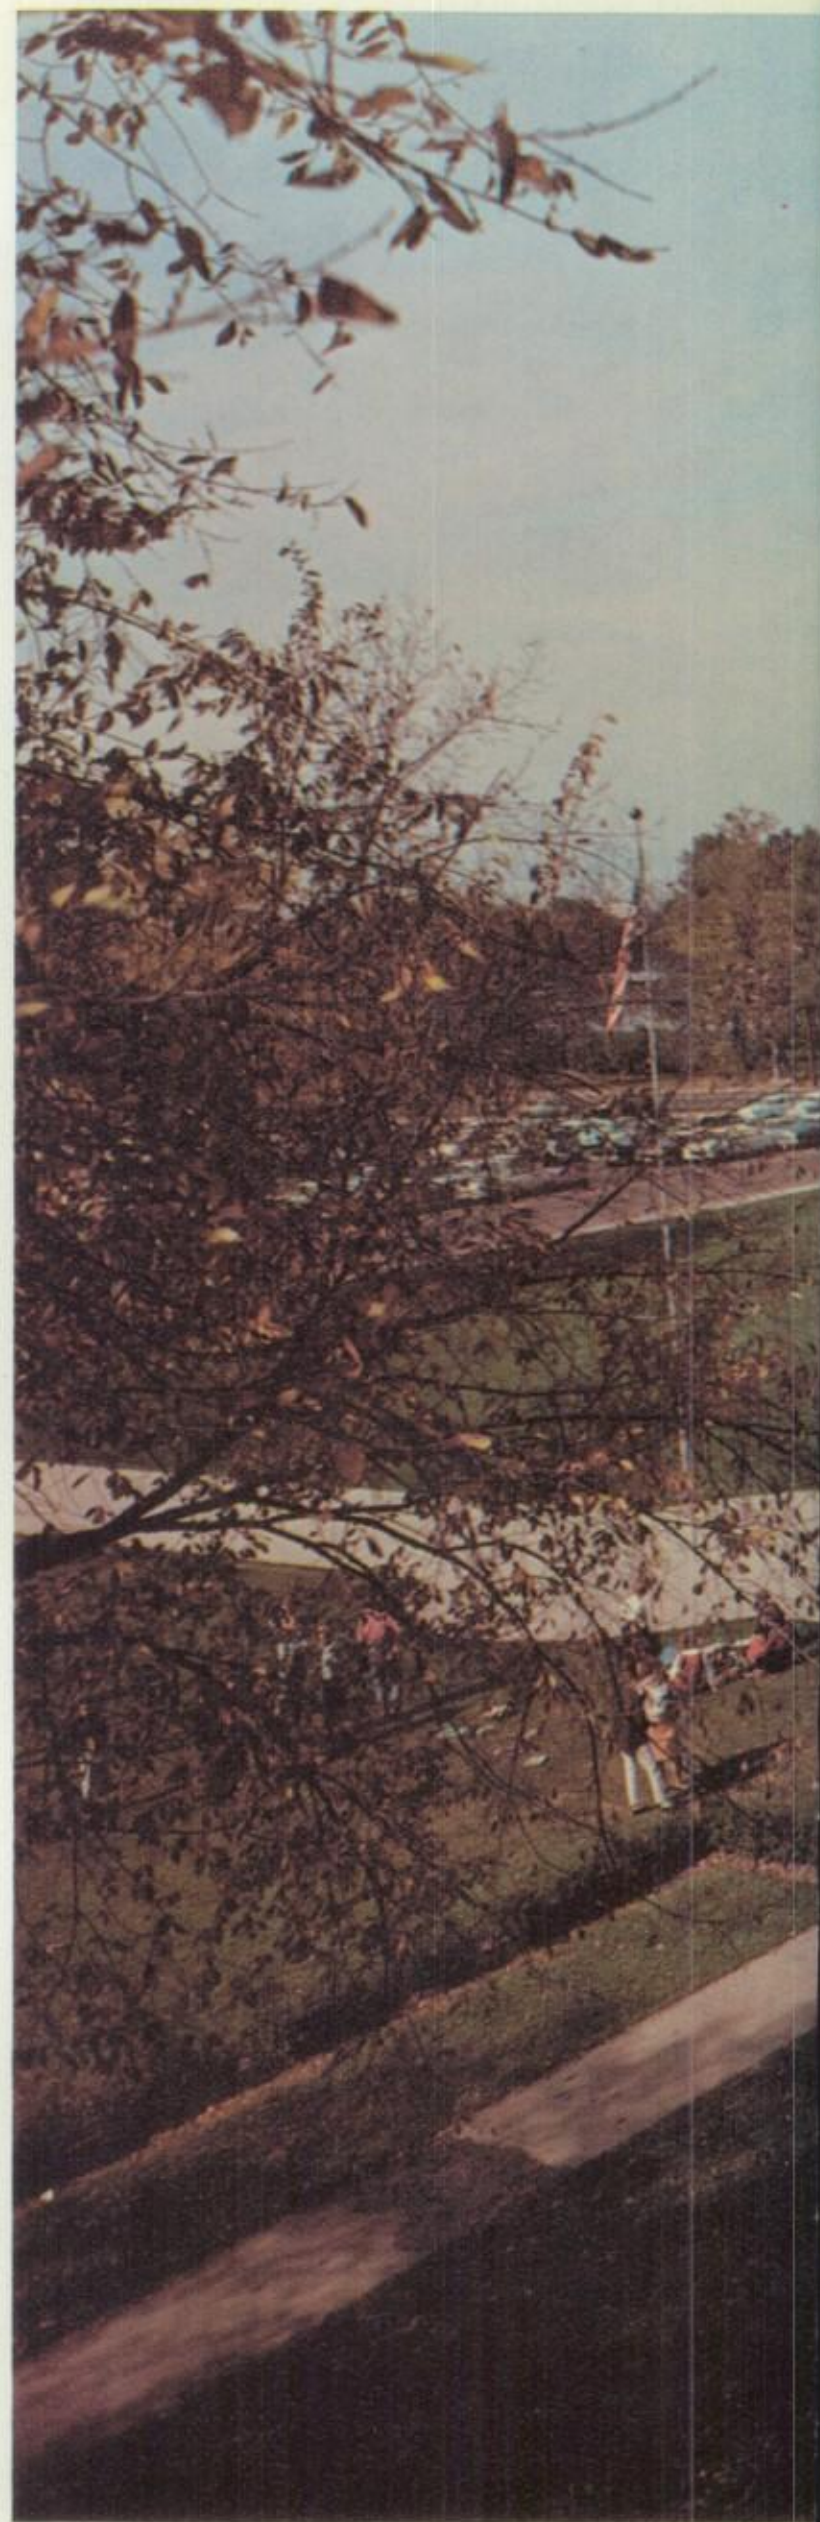

In addition to his exchange trip to England, Mr. Mitick has traveled to Europe several times. Using this wealth of cultural background in his European History classes, he greatly enlivens the textbook material with personal experiences in foreign countries. Amazingly, he possesses a tremendous knowledge in the field of English as well as in history. In the English department he is among those few who teach the accelerated classes.

For your high capabilities and achievements, for your continual devotion to the teaching profession, for your generosity in giving of your own time to help others, and for your many valued contributions to South, we dedicate to you, Mr. Mitick, the 1963 JOHNNY REB.

Through the dedication and patient efforts of the teacher, the desire, determination and application of the student, and the cooperation of both, comes excellence of academic achievement.

South is learning.

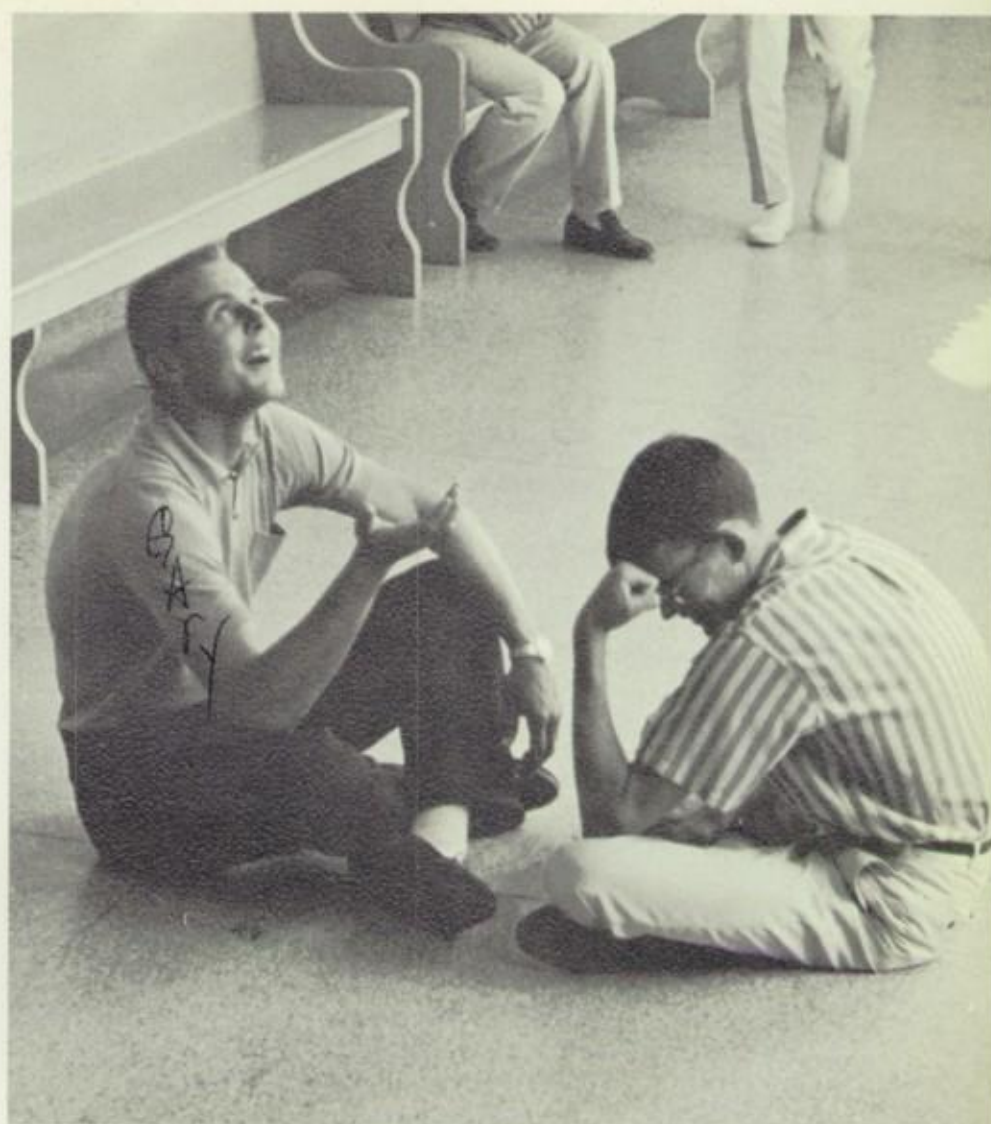

The challenge put before a coach and his team, the enthusiasm of a cheerleader, the contagious fun at a rally—all promote the patriotism felt for one's school.

South is spirit.

Talking with classmates on the lawn or in front of the popcorn wagon, sharing common interest in a school club, or simply spending carefree moments in amusement—these give joy in being with one another.

South is friendship.

Pep Club Tea

Penny Field and Lynne Nelson enjoy refreshments with Beth Kullhem, Karen Penley and Sherry Ronnfelt as they relax after the Sophomore Tea, "Autumn Splashes."

Flashing pep cards, sparkling songsters and lively dance routines entertained the newcomers to South on September 27th as the Pep Club presented its annual Sophomore Tea. Entitled "Autumn Splashes," the tea provided an opportunity for the girls to become better acquainted with one another and with the traditions of South. Following the program in the auditorium, the guests were treated to punch and cookies in the gym and were welcomed in a hospitable Southern manner by the Pep Club members.

Sophomore Party

Blue and yellow crepe streamers floated above the heads of members of the Class of '65 as they celebrated their first high school get-together at the sophomore party, "The Roaring Twentieth Century," on October 24th. Entertained by performers from their own class, they spent the evening getting acquainted with one another and dancing to the music of the Patri-cians. By the stroke of eleven they had shown the sponsors and guests of honor, Mrs. McIntosh and Mr. Schwairy, the spirit and enthusiasm they have for high school life as they shouted, "Yea sophomore class." The new rebels left for home with thoughts of newly-made friendships and the good times ahead.

Rebel Roundup

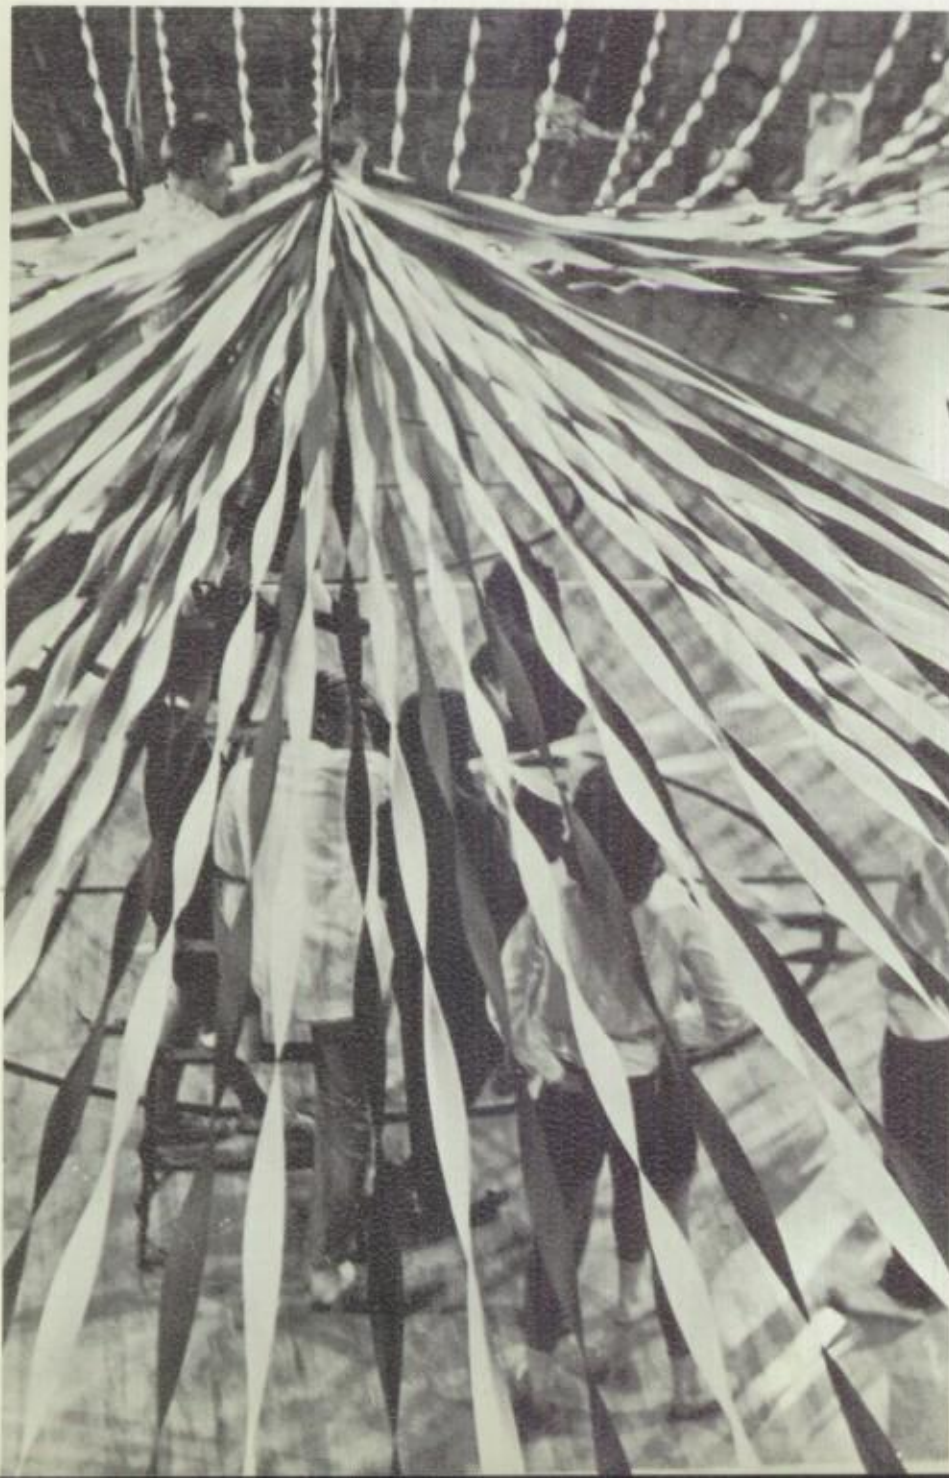

Eager shouts of greeting and loud cheers filled South Court as members of the student body gathered on October 20 for the annual Rebel Roundup. Carrying on the tradition of past years, members of the Confederate Staff served refreshments to the assembled crowd. The cheerleaders set the mood for the day as they led the massive assemblage in a rousing pep rally and then marched into the stadium at the head of the procession of shouting and seemingly never-ending numbers of Rebs.

Patient southerners wait in line for refreshments before the march to the stands begins at Rebel Roundup.

Homecoming Dance

Sounds of "Dixie" filtered from the gyms as happy couples danced to the music of George Bailey and the Blue Notes and celebrated the day's victory during the Homecoming dance, "Formation." Refreshments were served in the "Balcony," where weary Rebs gathered to rest and talk over the events of the day. As the first dance of the year, Homecoming set the pace for the year's coming social activities.

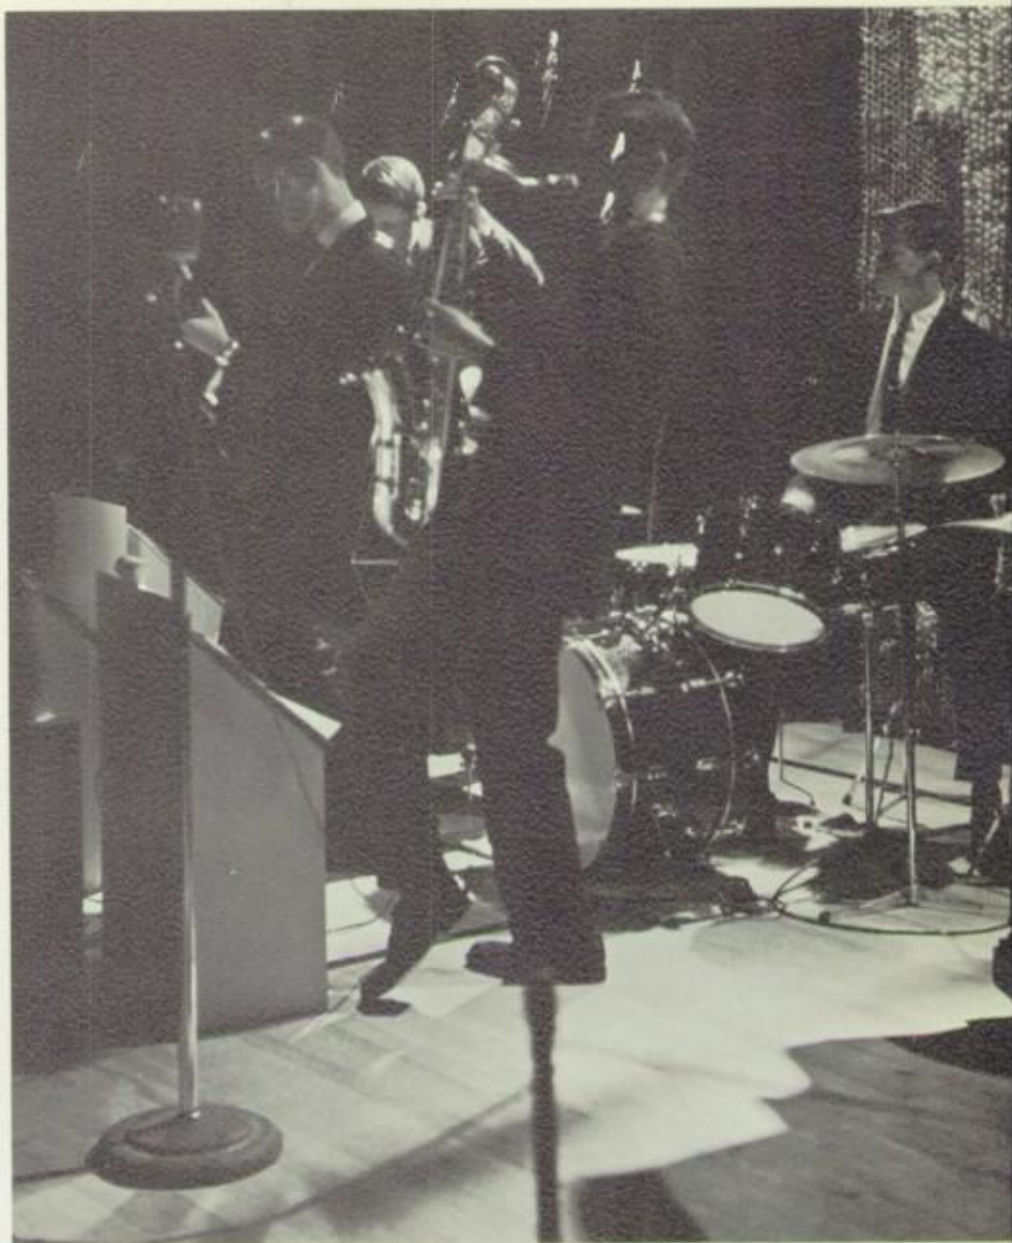

The gym begins to take on hues of purple and white as Pep Club, aided by the Key Club boys, decorate for the dance.

Key Klub Klomp

"Itich" circles were the center of attraction as lively couples and groups danced to the sounds of the Coachmen at the Key Klub Klomp on November 17. Another memorable feature was the presence of the Ecuadorian Amigos, who added their own variations to the American dances and demonstrated some steps and dance figures of their country. Key Klub Klomp, always noted for its originality, was one of the most popular dances of the school year.

Sounds of the Coachmen echo from the key-shaped backdrop at the Key Klub Klomp, held in the girls' gym.

Senior Play

An abandoned baby, a chunk of salomi and a trip to Africa started off a hilarious evening on November 3, as Senior Drama presented "Farewell, Farewell Eugene." Under the direction of Mrs. Nordstrom, a cast comprised totally of seniors ably brought the lives of two matronly sisters into view of the audience. Long hours of hard work finally paid off for the performers as they received a lengthy ovation for their efforts. Their production presented an impressive preview of the quality expected from future plays throughout the year.

Sara Downs gaily contemplates her up-coming African trip.

Operation Amigo

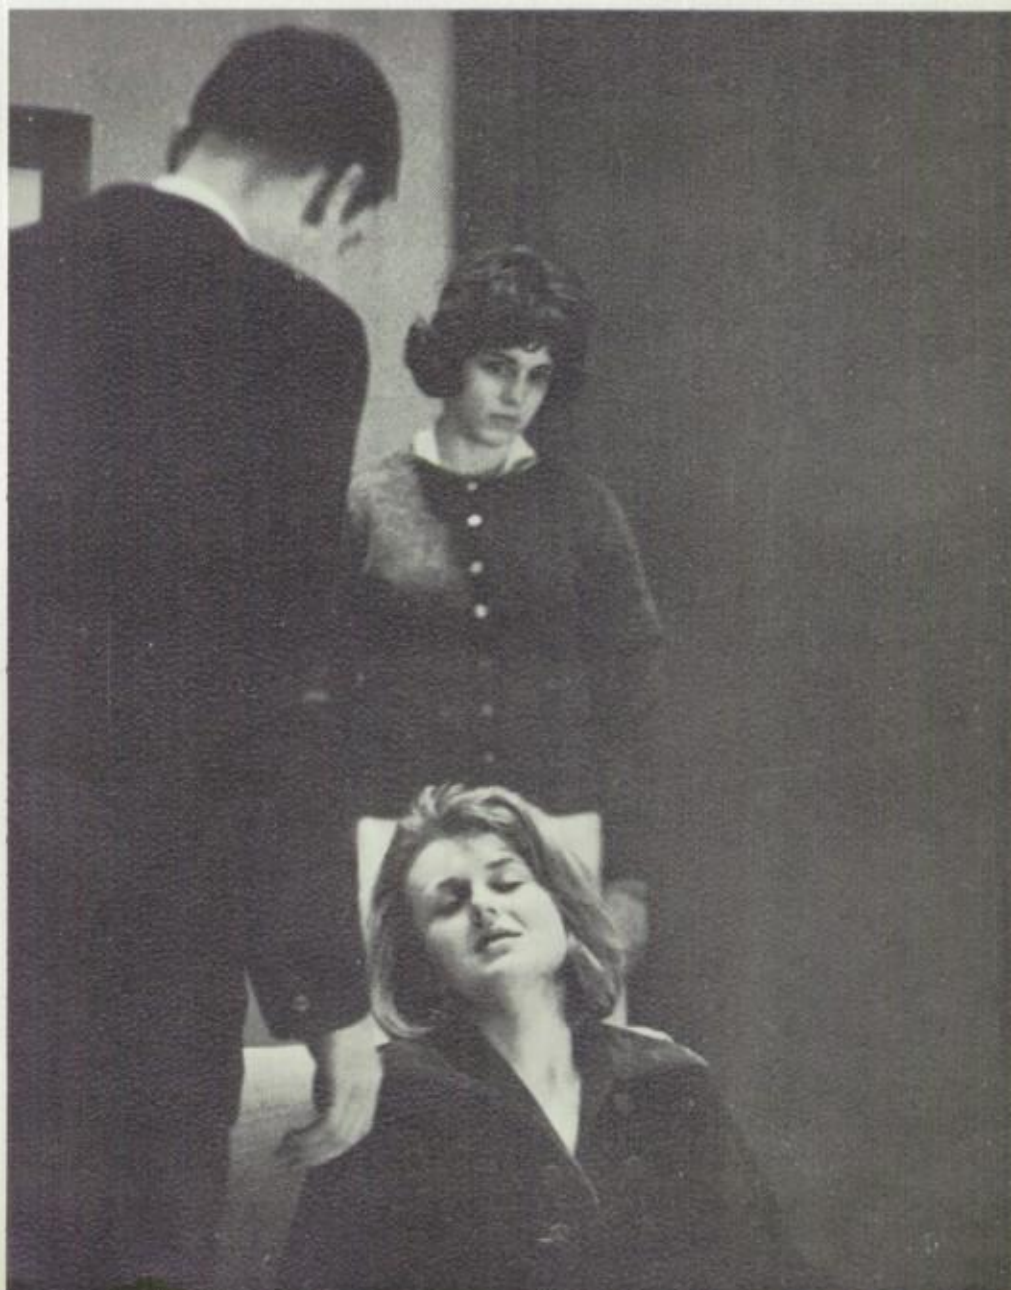

Spanish-English dictionaries were a common sight throughout the school during the last weeks of November as South played host to five students from Ecuador. Greeted at the airport by a rousing rally consisting of the South High band and cheering Rebels the Amigos were whisked away into a full two weeks of excitement and adventure. At South the welcome visitors exchanged ideas with their interested hosts and observed classes. Introduced to the entire student body at an afternoon pep rally, the Amigos later attended an equally fitting farewell assembly, given by the Seniors, on their last day at South. The Amigos left South High School, taking with them the mementos presented to them at the Senior assembly and leaving behind new ideas and a greater understanding of South American neighbors.

Dr. Anderson bids farewell to the Ecuadorian Amigos.

Kind Lady

Mystery and intrigue were the setting for the nights of January 10 and 12 as Senior Drama presented its second production of the year, "Kind Lady." Cecily Morgan, portraying Mary Harries, an elderly woman trapped in her own home by deceiving strangers, brought chills to the spines of the audience as she became her unwelcome guests' helpless victim. Exhibiting obvious talent and a great deal of poise, the cast presented one of their most noteworthy and stimulating productions of the year.

"Big Otis, give me a prayer," pleads Cecily Morgan.

Purple Parliament

The responsibilities and duties of a good officer and member, program planning and problem solving were some of the topics discussed at South's first leadership conference, "Purple Parliament." Mr. Small, a teacher from North, opened the meeting on January 3 with a talk on the equality of mankind. Following the discussion groups and refreshments, the Rebels again assembled in the auditorium where they heard Mr. Earl Reum give his "Group Dynamics" talk. Due to the success of the first "Purple Parliament," Student Council hopes to make an annual leadership conference traditional at South.

Mr. Reum shocks observers with his demonstration.

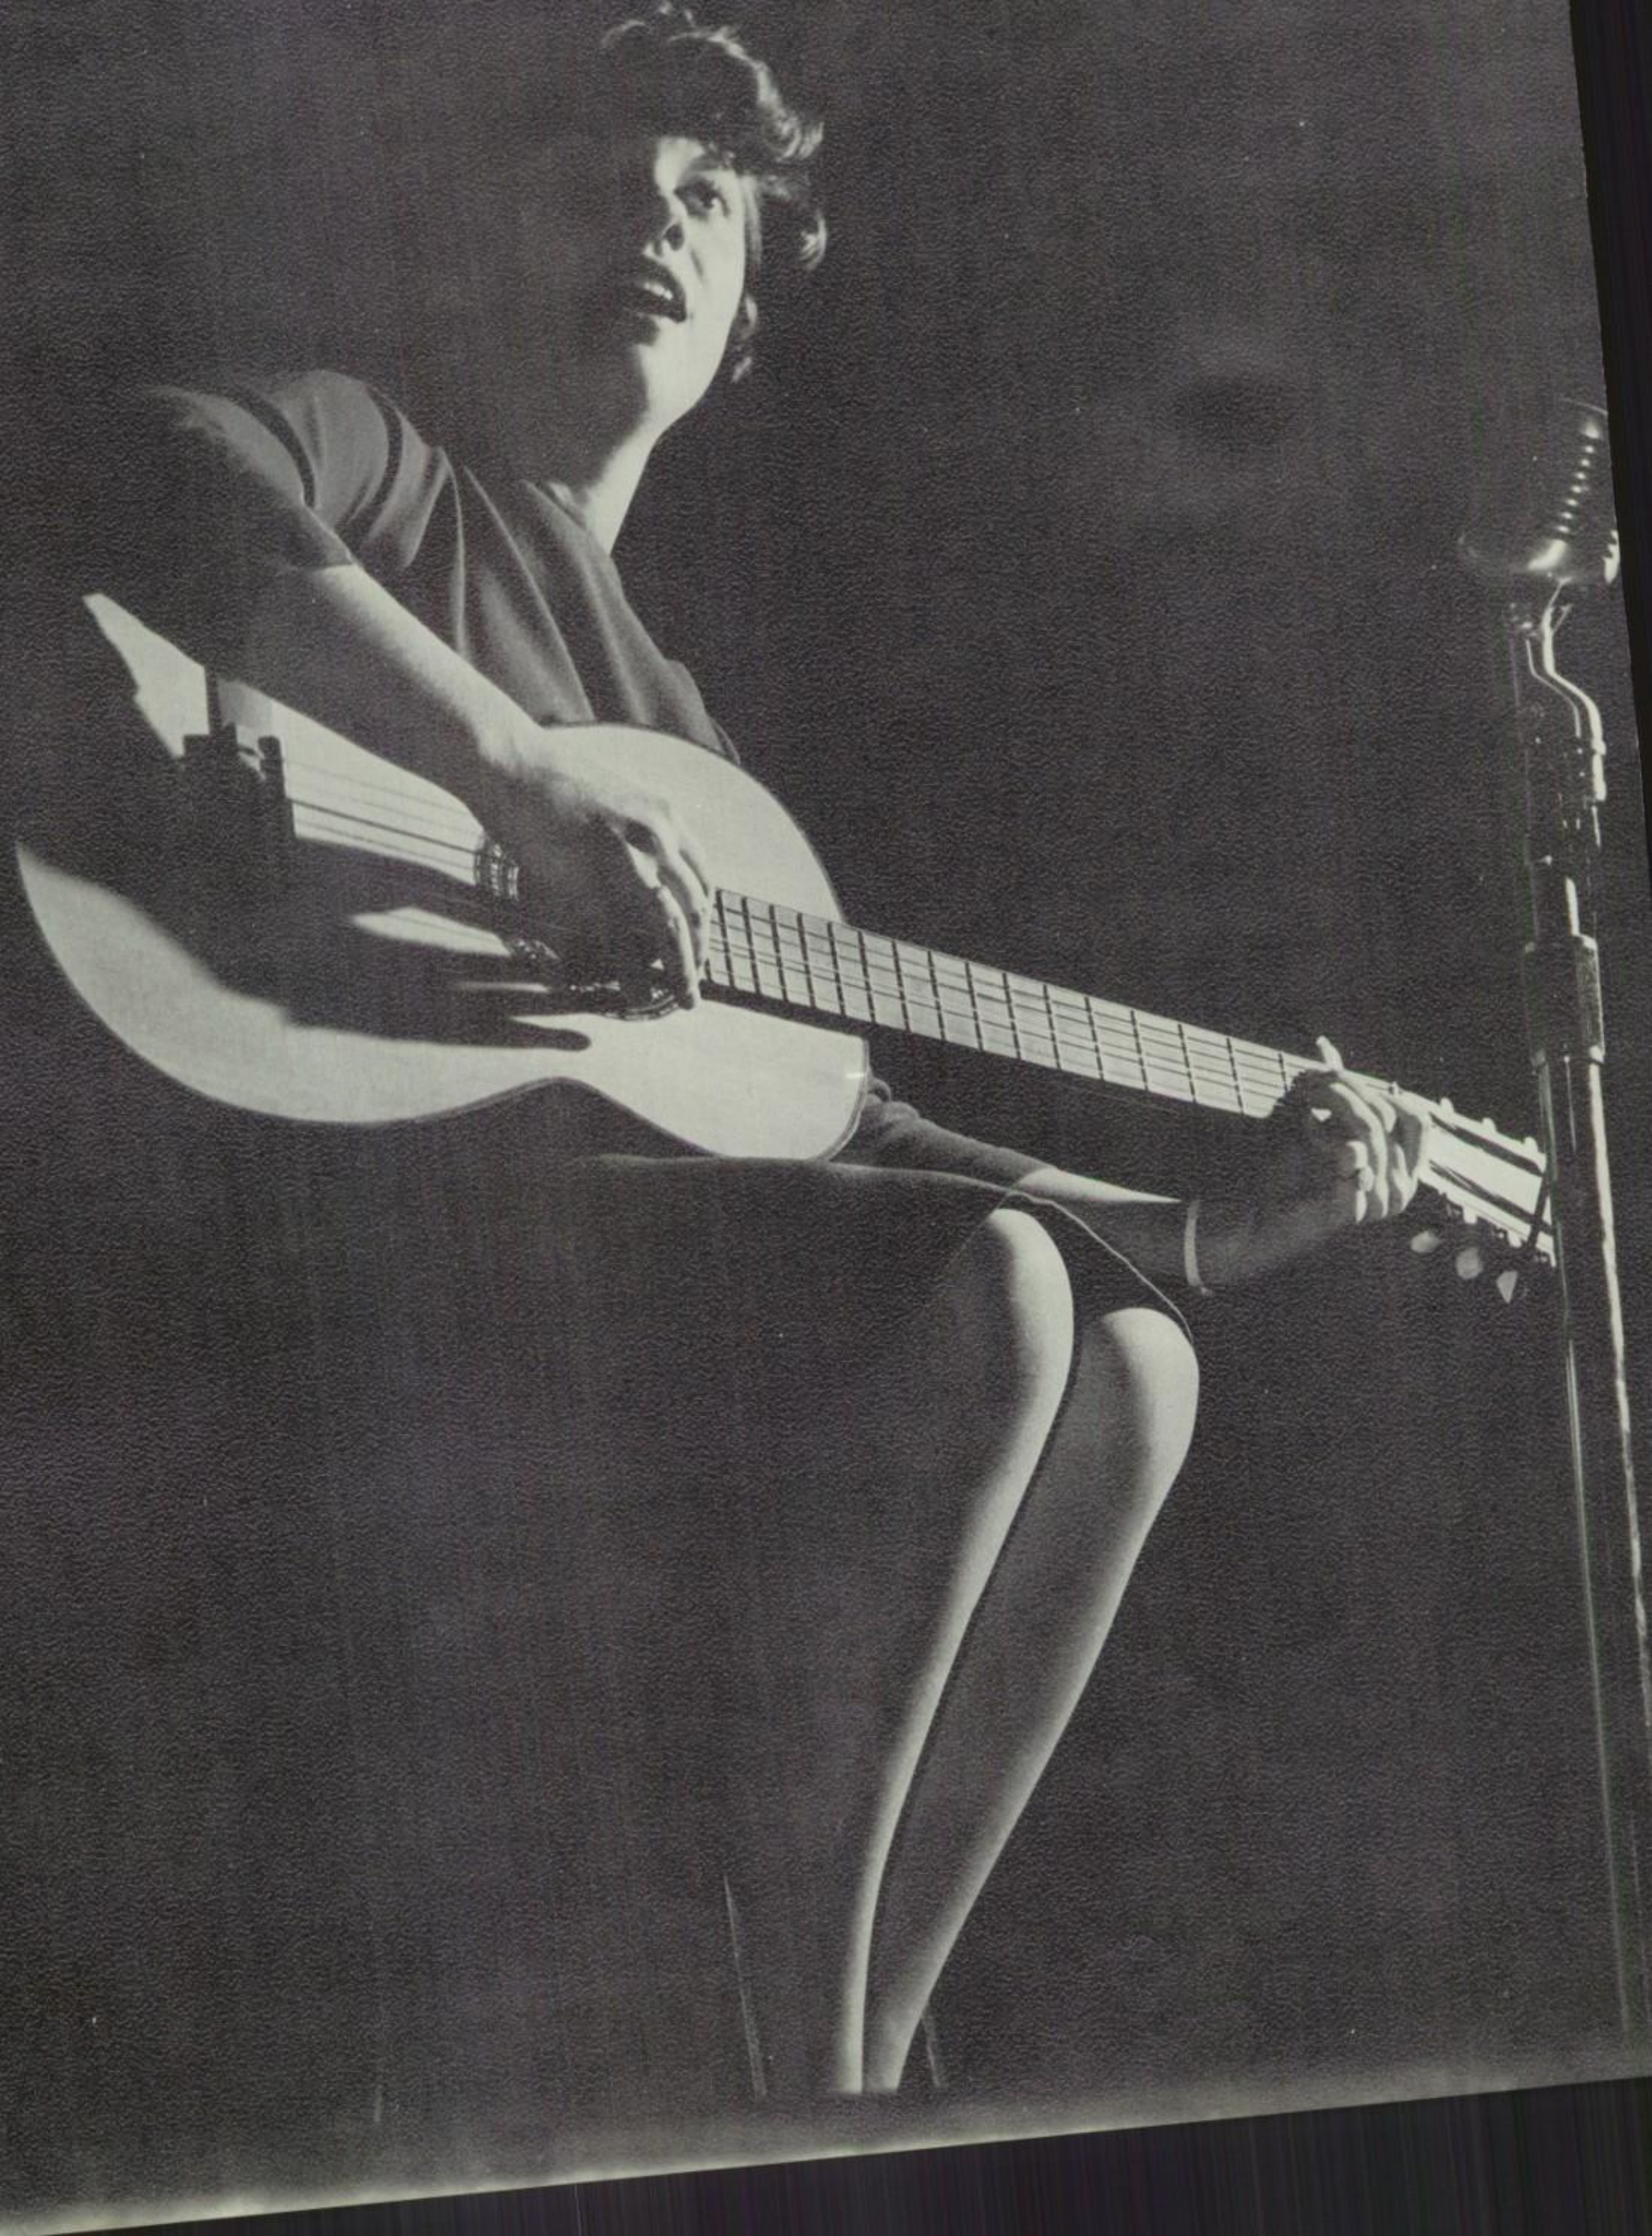

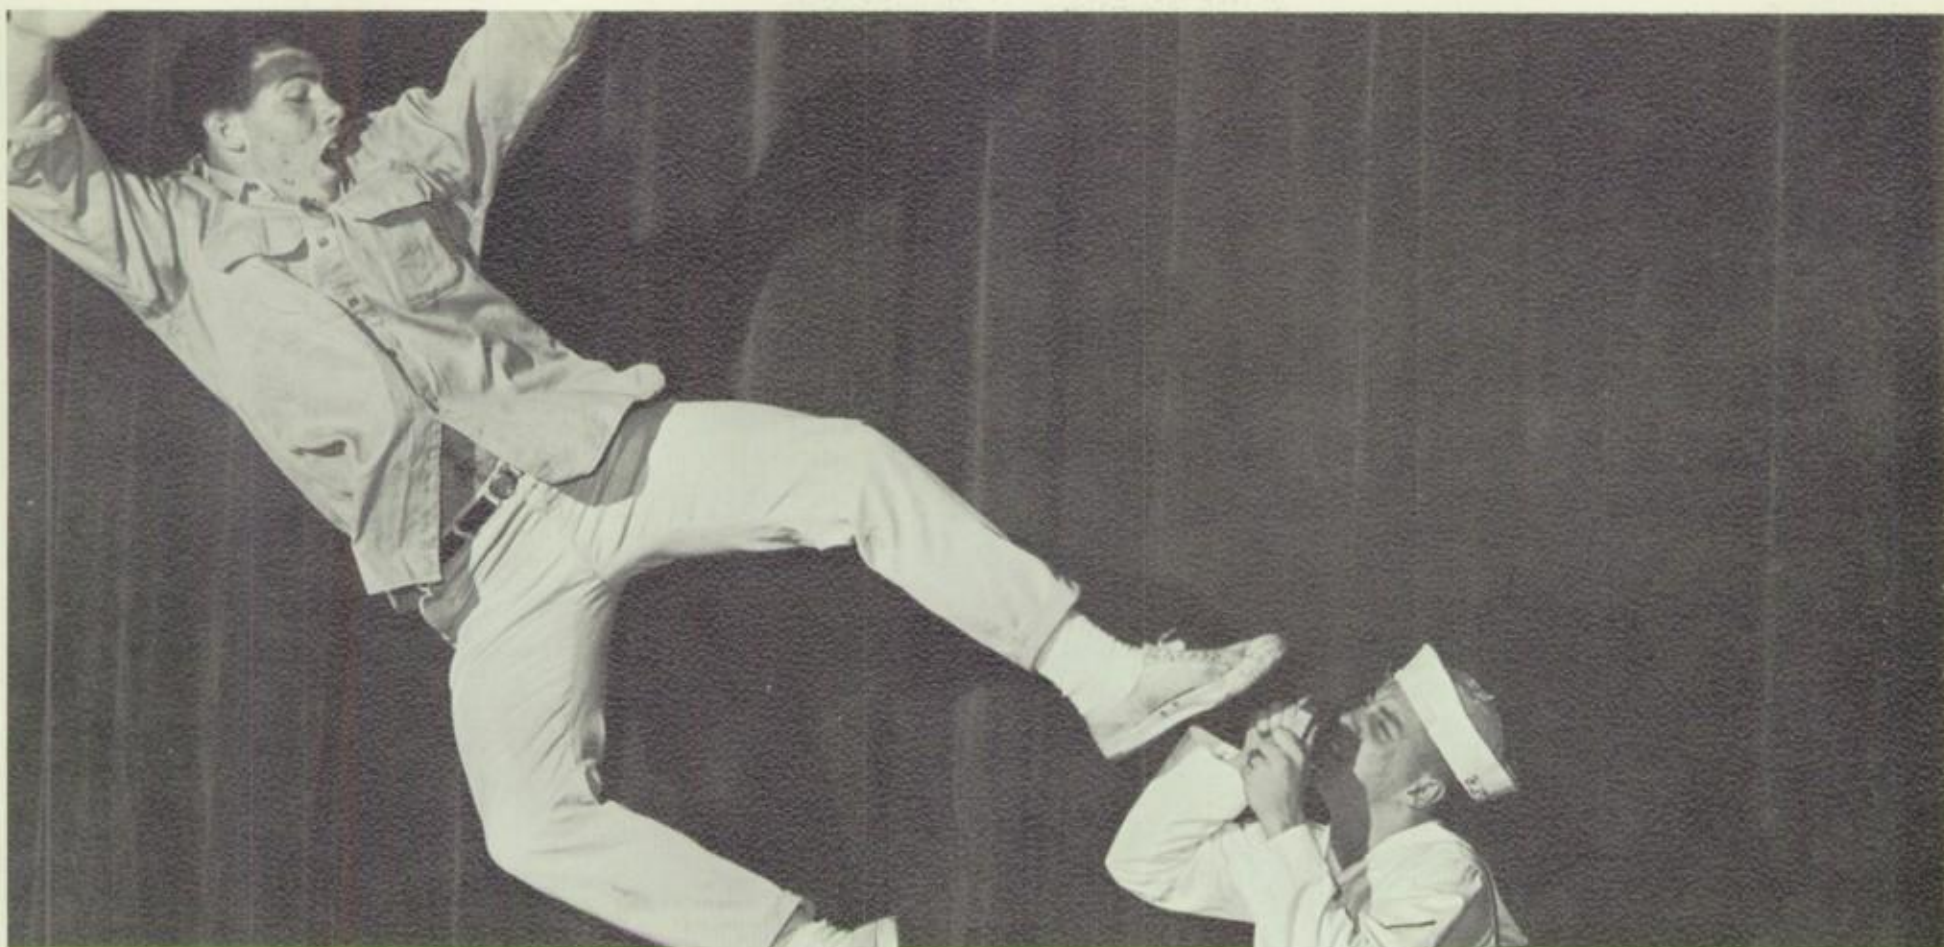

Cupid's Beau

A variety of corsages ranging from cereal boxes to dollar bills provided an unusual theme as each girl invited her favorite to Junior Red Cross' annual "Cupid's Beau" on January 16, and furnished him with her own original decoration. Although this dance was usually given jointly with Thomas Jefferson, this year each school went its separate way and held the dance in its own gym. Wayne Case and his band furnished the music as the Valentine setting was carried out by decorations of red, pink and white. Many parties were held after the dance and all participants were in genuine agreement that "Cupid's Beau" was one of the unique and unusual dances at South this year.

Stu Elliott, with a vicious Karate foot thrust, fails to break the board but succeeds in breaking Elmer Canady.

All-School Show

Elegance was the word most descriptive of the All-School Show of 1963, "Stars in My Eyes." Elaborating on the star theme, representatives of the three classes and the different phases of school life presented an inspiring show on February 21 and 23. The Senior girls' dance line started off the show with a lively south-of-the-border rendition. Many acts followed, including the ROTC drill team demonstration, a satire on Karate and judo, and many soloists and dance lines. Commentators Karen Erickson and Stuart Elliott tied the acts together with their in-between-acts narration. The music and entertainment were impressive as South introduced her many talented Rebels to the students and community.

Starr McLeran narrates "The King's New Suit."

Rallies

The pom-pom girls add enthusiasm to a rally.

Originality was one of the mainstays of the rallies this year as various groups led them for the student body during and after school. The basketball, swimming and wrestling teams each presented one which described some phase of their respective sports. The cheerleaders and pom-pom girls helped to inspire spirit among shouting Rebs as they led the many cheers which testified to school spirit and support. The new alma mater was sung at the close of each rally to add the finishing touch of tradition and respect to these inspiring pep gatherings.

Bob Elliott cuts a striking pose as he expresses optimism and confidence about the coming meet.

Assemblies

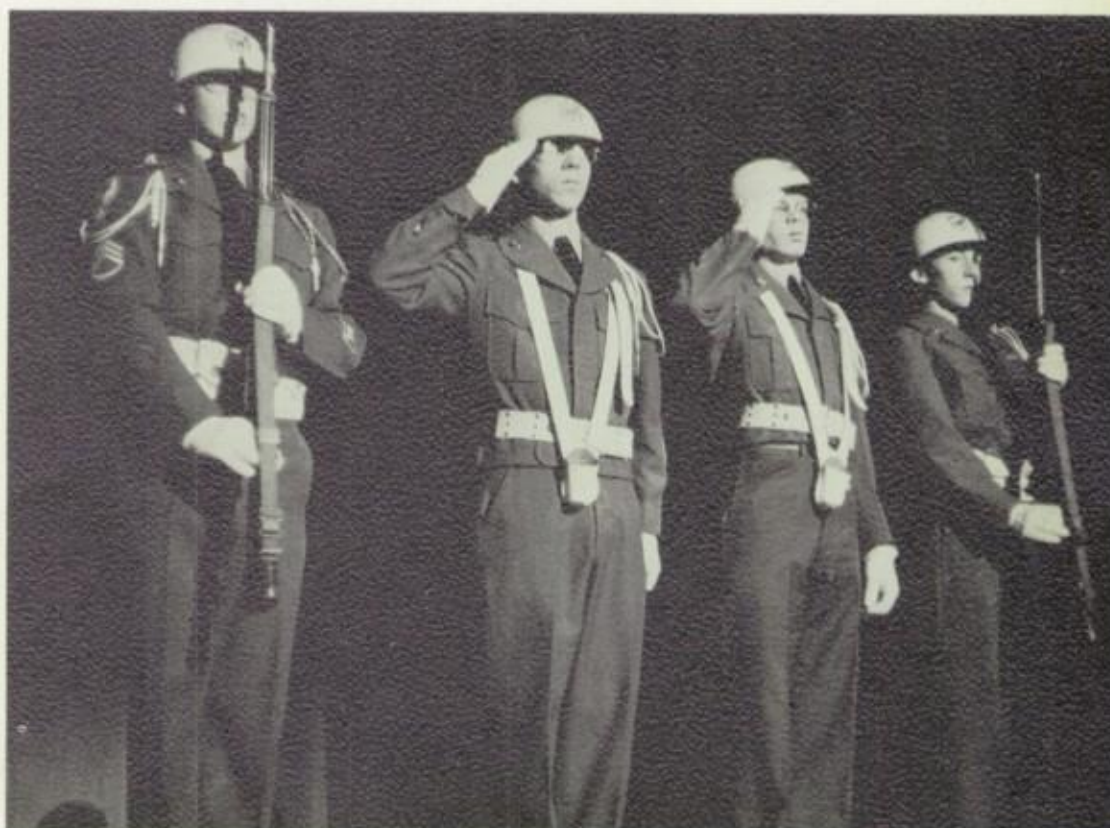

"I am the product of the cruel, evil world of today. I am the new spirit of Christmas," says Anne Breck to "Stuardo."

Members of the Confederate staff make an effective entrance in their annual Christmas assembly.

Thought provoking and entertaining assemblies were held throughout the year to recognize Rebels' achievements and to organize various drives. The Thanksgiving and Christmas programs portrayed a serious side of the assemblies as speakers gave sedate speeches and the school choirs provided religious vocal music. At one of the most outstanding assemblies of the year, Mr. Cozens accepted the gift of the Freedom Shrine on behalf of the social science department, and JoAnn McFarland narrated, "I am an American." On the lighter side, members of the Confederate staff did a take-off on West Side Story in which they asked for assistance on the Santa Claus Shop Drive. The assemblies furnished a chance for the school to meet as a body and provided a moment of relaxation and entertainment in the school day.

The ROTC Color Guard salutes the flag at one of the serious and thought provoking assemblies.

Career Day

Career Day, March 21, gave South's students an opportunity to learn more about interesting vocations and inspired them to formulate plans for the future. Pep Club invited business leaders and professional people to South and asked them to speak about their respective careers. Each student attended two conferences to learn about those particular fields which were of most interest and benefit to him and his future.

"Which hat will I wear," was a question Career Day helped to answer for many military-minded boys.

Fashion Show

Spring creations from local stores were modeled by the senior members of Pep Club at their annual spring fashion show on April 4. Departing from the tradition of having only one show, the girls modeled again that night. Both the participants and the audience agreed that Jill Scott, program chairman, and her committee did a remarkably efficient job.

Peg Stonner tries out as a model for the fashion show.

Class Day and Graduation

An elegant luncheon held at the Brown Palace Hotel in the afternoon highlighted Class Day. Seniors attended South in the morning for the traditional assembly at which outstanding members of the Class of '63 were recognized for their achievements. Perhaps the most memorable event for the graduating students was the commencement ceremony at D.U. Arena on June 4. There, graceful junior escorts dressed in pale green led the proudly robed seniors in their last activity at South High School.

Glittering blue and silver decorations created a "Fantasia" for formally-dressed couples at the Junior-Senior Prom on April 20. The magical sounds of Dean Bushnell and his orchestra drifted throughout the D.U. Student Union as the dancers whiled the hours away and anxiously awaited the crowning of the queens. The suspenseful hours were finally over as each class president placed the sparkling crown on his class' queen, and Sue Hamilton and Kay Baker ascended the throne to reign over "Fantasia."

Long hours of suspenseful waiting and the many days of excitement come to a climax on the night of the prom. For a girl aspiring to be queen this is the highlight of her high school days. First she must submit an application which is checked by the Dean. Then comes the most difficult task of all: She must be voted queen by her classmates. At the prom the class president pauses before reading the chosen name. Then comes . . a kiss . . a crown . . a bouquet . . and the memories of a dream come true.

The dance and the coronation of the Color Day queen on May 10 ended the activities of perhaps the most impatiently awaited day of the school year. Students, dressed in purple and white, attended an assembly at South in the morning at which each class crowned its separate queen and presented talent in her and her attendants' honor. Contests, sponsored by Student Council, were held on the grounds before the track meet. Four activities went into consideration for Color Day points: attendance at class council meetings, voting, PTA Drive, and the Goodwill Drive. The Senior Class, with the greatest number of points, won Color Day and crowned its queen.

Cheerleaders

The Rebel cheerleaders added life and sparkle to the South athletic schedule by attending all meets and games. South was represented by at least one of the six during every sports activity, and all gave up their time to lead Rebels in supporting the teams in city and state competition.

Cross Country

Cross Country, termed by Coach Mielenz one of the most difficult sports, brought much work but few wins to South in 1963. The Rebels were handicapped in the bid for the City crown in two ways. Only one runner from the 1962 team returned this year, and of the six lettermen, Mike Rash was inactive part of the season with a leg injury. This placed South at disadvantage to schools with full complements of runners. Prior to the City Meet, South usually placed third, losing to Lincoln and East, but in City competition the Rebels ran last. Backed by eleven other competent harriers, Larry Aurich, John Jackson, Buckley Stewart, William Shuler, Warren Taylor and Mike Rash were the members of the first team.

Golf

With the help of six returning lettermen South won a third in city golf competition. Under the guidance of Coach Mielenz, South's golfers lost only to Washington, East and Jefferson. Jim Severson, Mike Bragg, Randy Woods, George Snead, Mike Erikson and Lou Janda formed the nucleus of the team. Backed by first year men Jim McGaw, George Berry, Andy Barton and Mark Waddell, South was the only team in City to tie league-leading Washington.

Tennis

South's tennis team was a strong contender for the city court championship in 1963. With the help of three returning lettermen, Barry Rapp, Stu Smith and Jim Wherry, South played without a loss for four consecutive matches. In city competition Barry Rapp was number one man, Jim Edwards played number two, and Stu Smith and Jim Wherry were the doubles team. South was defeated only by Lincoln and Washington to take third in City, and beat all competition to win State for the second consecutive year.

Varsity Football

South missed a City championship in football by ten seconds and two plays. In the first league game of the 1963 season the Rebels played East to a 7-7 tie. South, on the Angels' goal line when the plays ended, failed to score. East went on to win both the City and State championships and South placed second, losing to Thomas Jefferson in the remaining games. In non-league activity the Rebels lost to Boulder 14-20, but they won against Wheatridge 7-0, and they beat the Golden team 33-0.

The 1963 team was composed primarily of seniors, but a few juniors played in many of the games. Of the seniors on varsity, three were unable to play because of injuries. Steve Mills broke his leg in pre-season play, Jim Shackles was out most of the season with a broken collarbone, and Jack Warchesik was crippled quite a lot with leg injuries. Coach Yates' opinion of the varsity effort was that with the help of these three lettermen and a few breaks, South would have won the City crown. Despite the injuries and the loss to East, the Rebels exhibited team spirit that made them a superior team in 1963.

The juniors played a good season in 1963, losing only three of their league games. Several bays were picked for the varsity and added their strength to the team. Due to the large number of players at the first of the year, the sophomores experienced a more erratic series. The team, which was cut from over one hundred to eighty players after the first games, gave away many of their contests. After the second cut reduced the number to forty-five boys, the sophomores gained greater winning strength.

Wrestling

South held an excellent wrestling score in 1963. In city competition the Rebels lost only to Lincoln, making the season's record six wins and one defeat. Pre-season matches were won against Cherry Creek and Westminster. Going into the state tournament, South had three all-city choices and one runner-up. Paul Vallos, Don Lyon, and Hal Young were backed by Mike Martin in the state matches. South placed in a six-way tie for fifth in the state meet, but the Rebels showed outstanding form in the city meets under coaches Bob Conklin and Jim Pagliasotti.

Swimming

South won the 1963 state swimming title for the second year in a row. The winning score of seventy outdistanced nearest competitors East and Washington with thirty-nine and fifty-three points respectively. Two former state records were replaced as Bill Gage swam the individual medley in two minutes, fourteen and eight-tenths seconds, and Tom Chamberlain broke the two hundred yard freestyle record with a time of two minutes, eight-tenths of a second. In dual meet competition South was defeated only by East, but the Washington tankers won the city meet when the Rebel relay team was disqualified. Lack of depth was met by the addition to the squad of competent sophomore and junior swimmers, making the 1963 team a talented championship group.

Varsity Basketball

Coach Robert Wilson led the Rebels to the first city championship since 1948. Composed completely of seniors, the team played with skill and teamwork to defeat most of Denver's squads. Washington took both games against South, and West won one, to hold the season's record at eleven and three. The state tournament pitted the Rebels against Pueblo South in the first game and against Wheatridge in the second. Pueblo South was defeated by twenty-two points, but Wheatridge played a fine game to beat South by one goal in the last five seconds of the game.

Sophomore Basketball

Mr. Mielenz coached the sophomore squad through an erratic basketball season. The team was usually successful in beating the same teams twice in a row, showing a consistency of play. Strong team spirit was shown throughout the season, and the sophomores learned proper defensive tactics through their contacts with rival teams. When summarizing the year, Coach Mielenz praised the team's competitive spirit and steady playing ability.

Junior Varsity Basketball

The Junior Varsity played an outstanding season in league competition. Coach Yates led the team to the season record of eleven wins and three losses. Four juniors were chosen by Mr. Wilson for varsity. These four, Stu Smith, Jimmy Townsend, Harold Frost and Wayne Brewer, added extra strength to the team in the contest for the city and state championships. The Juniors led the division race with their eleven and three record, and they came from behind in their last games to tie for the Junior Varsity cage title.

Gymnastics

Several outstanding athletes made the Rebel's gymnastic team strong. Jim Fulcher was the city's best in free exercise, Dick Gallegos and Jim McElroy won honors for South on the side horse, and Steve McCormick and George Fivgas performed well vaulting the horse. The team was made up equally of seniors, juniors and sophomores, and there were enough boys to round out each event successfully.

Track

South went into the 1963 track season with over eighty boys. Many sophomores came out for the preseason practices, and their combination with juniors and seniors formed a team with strength in all track events. Distance runners included Alex Lagerborg, Terry Aurich, Dave Gerber, and Warren Taylor. Larry Hilbelink held the relay position, and Jan Peterson and Jerry McCurry were two of the six vaulters. Coached by Mr. Mielenz, the Rebels enjoyed a successful season with good depth in all action.

Varsity Baseball

South's hopes for the baseball season rested on a number of returning lettermen of the 1962 season. Playing positions early in the season included Rick Vafeades, outfielder; Rocky Wiley, pitcher; Steven Mills, third baseman; and Bill Schmoll, the catcher. A number of boys came out for pre-season practice, and Mr. Pagliasotti looked forward to a good series. The sophomores showed good teamwork in early games, and the coaches hoped to improve the team's chances by cutting the number of boys.

Administration

Supervising the management of the school and exercising a creative educational leadership is the responsibility of the administrative personnel. The principal sees that the educational policies of the Denver Public Schools are carried out and makes the administrative decisions at South. Determining the schedule of classes and deciding the procedures for defense and fire drills is one of the many jobs of the assistant principal. The co-ordinator directs the work of the counseling department in individual programming and guidance. Applications for queens, class officers and exchange students must be submitted for the approval of the dean. In addition, all members of the administration spend much of their time with matters of student discipline, individual counseling and school leadership.

Clerical Staff

The clerical staff of South High is responsible for keeping the routine business in school management running smoothly. The office workers handle telephone messages, prepare weekly and special bulletins, keep files of student records and take care of attendance and excuses. The distribution of locks, special forms and other supplies for the school, and the management of the lost and found are also under the direction of the office staff. Supervising the school's books, fee cards, and the money transactions of school clubs and organizations is the job of the treasurer. The work of the clerical staff keeps South a well-ordered, efficiently managed school.

Paperwork is a major part of the job of the office staff.

Counseling and Special Services

Helping the students of South High in a variety of ways is the goal of the counselors and special services personnel. Under the guidance of counseling teachers, students plan their schedules for each semester. The counselor also aids the pupil in the event of program conflicts and keeps his cumulative school records. The vocational counselor helps students who are interested in finding employment to get a full or part-time job. Through the college counseling office students receive information on admission requirements, scholastic tests and scholarships, and arrange to talk with representatives from colleges all over the country. The college-trained librarians help students to broaden their literary horizons in the library. In the nurse's office, physical examinations are given and student health records kept. The social worker gives counseling concerning home and individual problems.

Language

South's language department covers a wide range of linguistics, including French, Spanish, German, Russian and Latin. Students studying the language of another country strive for an understanding and mastery of grammar and pronunciation, and also gain valuable knowledge of the history, customs and literature of the area. In the language laboratory, electronic sound reproduction equipment and tape recording machines give students an opportunity to listen to native speakers and to perfect their comprehension and speaking ability. More advanced students read great works of world literature in the languages in which they were written.

Students interested in science may choose from the wide range of studies available in South's science department. Classes in chemistry and physics give pupils an opportunity to carry out experiments in the laboratory to supplement classroom study. Biology students observe the life processes of many kinds of plants and gain first-hand knowledge of body structure and functions of different animals through laboratory dissection. Zoology, botany and physiology are more specialized areas in the general field of biology. Astronomy, geology and photography lend additional scope to South's science department. An advanced placement chemistry class provides college level study for senior students with special interest and ability.

Students receive an excellent background in the English language through South's English department. In addition to providing a fundamental knowledge of good usage and grammar, the department offers courses in literature which encourage understanding and appreciation of the world's great writings. Pupils learn to express themselves effectively through classes in composition and creative writing. In the accelerated English sequence college level English is offered during the senior year. Speech classes give students poise and the ability to speak before groups of people, while those in drama classes may participate in class plays. Journalism students gain experience by putting out the newspaper, the Confederate, and members of the annual staff cooperate in producing South's yearbook, the Johnny Reb.

Ancient History

The main concern of social science is the study of man and civilization from prehistoric times down to our own day. Through the many different history courses available at South, pupils acquire a knowledge of the events and ideas in the history of mankind. American history, western history, ancient history and European history give the student an awareness of significant influences of the past and their importance to our understanding of current trends. The accelerated history program encompasses all of these courses and gives students the opportunity to study college level history during their senior year. Studies in current affairs, government and economics acquaint pupils with social and economic systems and with the significance of present-day events. Psychology and sociology explore the individual and his role in society.

Mathematics

Courses in basic math, general math, algebra, plane and solid geometry, trigonometry and mathematical analysis are available to students in the comprehensive mathematics program at South. Students with exceptional ability may choose to enter the accelerated math sequence, which includes a more intensive study of plane and solid geometry, unified algebra and trigonometry during the sophomore and junior years, and a course in college level mathematics in the senior year. This college course consists of a combination of integral and differential calculus and analytic geometry. By choosing among these courses, students may gain the mathematical background required for any type of career.

Business Education

Through the courses offered in the Business Education department at South, students may receive comprehensive preparation for a career in business. Classes in stenography, transcription and typing are useful to those who desire to be secretaries. By printing all kinds of materials for teachers, future business workers in office practice classes perform a useful service to the school and have an opportunity to learn about office routines and the operation of business machines. Distributive education classes give students valuable practice in dealing with the consumer through instruction in salesmanship and retail merchandising.

Physical Education

Recognizing the importance of physical as well as mental fitness, the physical education department at South High School concentrates on the development of physical skills and co-ordination. Students do calisthenics, participate in team sports such as basketball, softball, volleyball and tennis, and develop form and grace on gym apparatus, including ropes, rings, mats and the trampoline. Modern dancing, horseshoes, archery and ping pong are other skill-building activities in girls' gym classes.

Home Economics

To give girls an opportunity for learning basic skills of homemaking is the goal of the home economics department at South. Classes in foods teach nutrition and ways to plan well-balanced, appetizing meals. Students also gain experience by preparing foods in the school kitchens. In clothing classes, girls study fashion design and sewing techniques which enable them to design and make their clothes. Through home management courses, girls study interior decoration and learn how to achieve a pleasing effect by tasteful choice of colors and careful arrangement of furniture. In these courses, girls may acquire knowledge which will enable them to become efficient homemakers.

Mr. Donald Taylor

The friendly face of Mr. Taylor will not be among those of South's faculty next year, as he is leaving to work on his doctorate. During the past years he has been a valuable part of our school's language department. In addition to teaching his Spanish classes and part-time counseling duties, he has been the only Russian teacher at South. Mr. Taylor, as a previous sponsor of the Johnny Reb staff, was responsible for much of the modernization of the yearbook and for many procedures which are basic to smooth yearbook production. He was also a popular sponsor of Future Teachers of America in past years. We want to show our appreciation for his fine contributions to school life, and only hope Mr. Taylor may return to teach at South.

Mrs. Katherine O'Connor

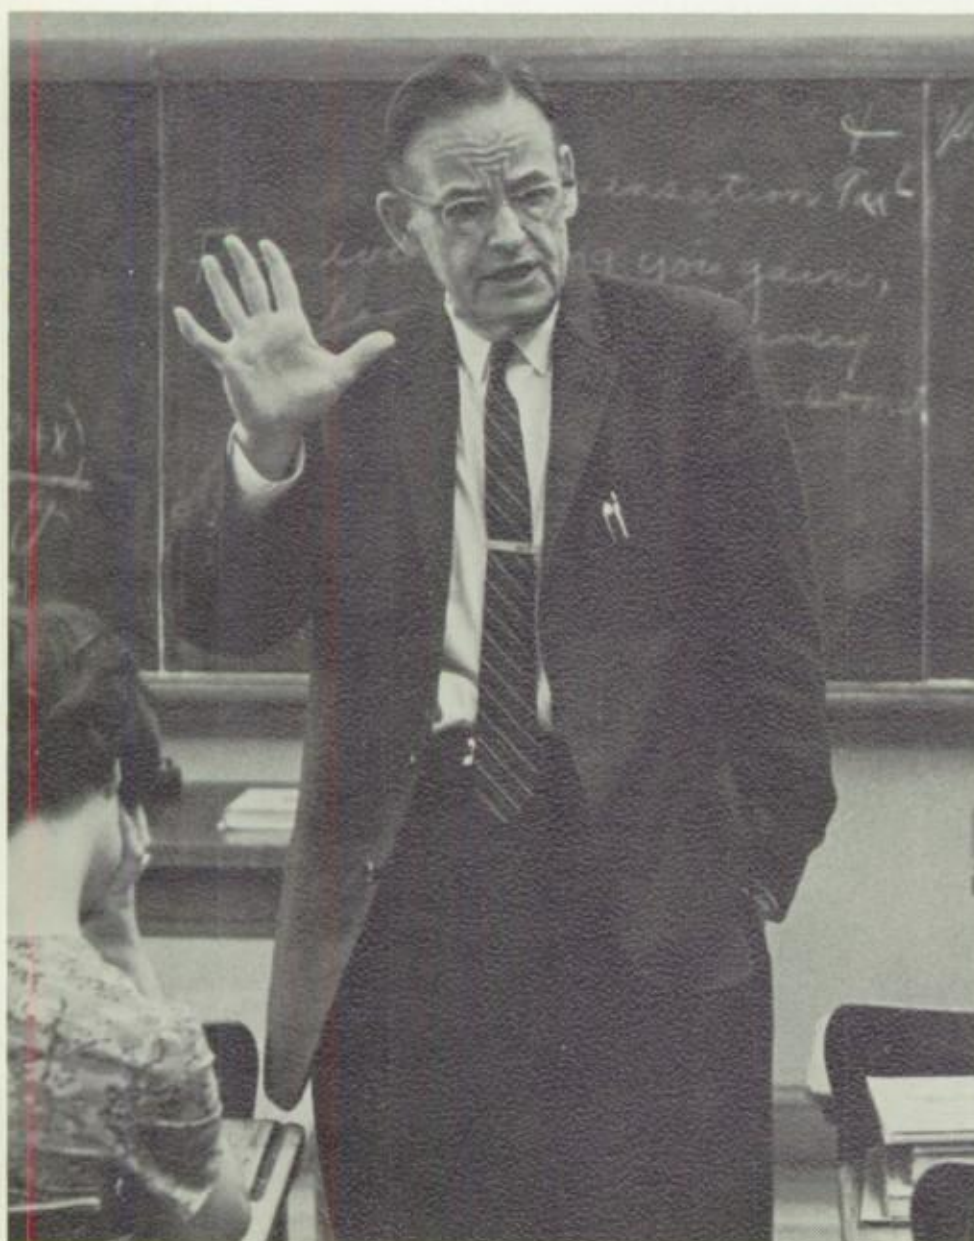

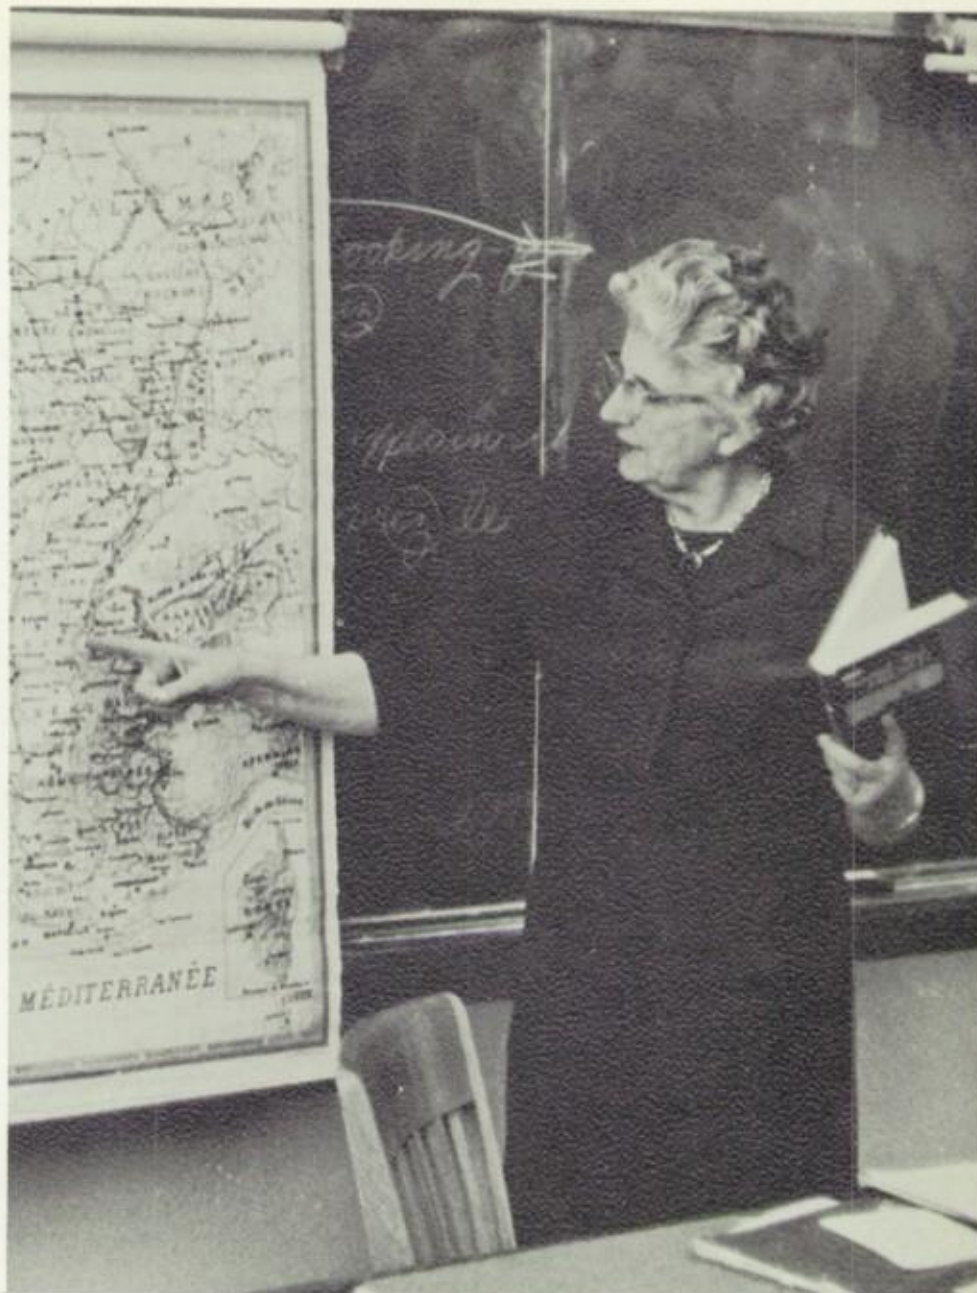

A favorite teacher among Spanish students is Mrs. O'Connor. She is well-known for her friendly smile, laughing manner, and her little ringing bell in the classroom. Under her leadership, students develop the ability to speak, write and read the Spanish language. As sponsor of one of the Spanish clubs in past years, she offered students additional opportunities to further their appreciation of Spanish customs and traditions. Because Mrs. O'Connor is planning to retire soon, we wish to thank her for the time she has willingly given to the Spanish "estudiantes" at South High School.

Recognition

Madame Odette Combs

For forty years Madame Combs has devoted herself to the spreading of French culture throughout Denver. She founded the French Club at South and was the organizer and director of the "Educational Tours of France," which she accompanied every other summer with her eligible students. For her tireless teaching activity and contributions and for her great services to Franco-American relations, Madame Combs was awarded the Legion of Honor last January. Though she left South last semester, all that she has given to our school remains with us. We wish to recognize and to sincerely thank Madame Combs.

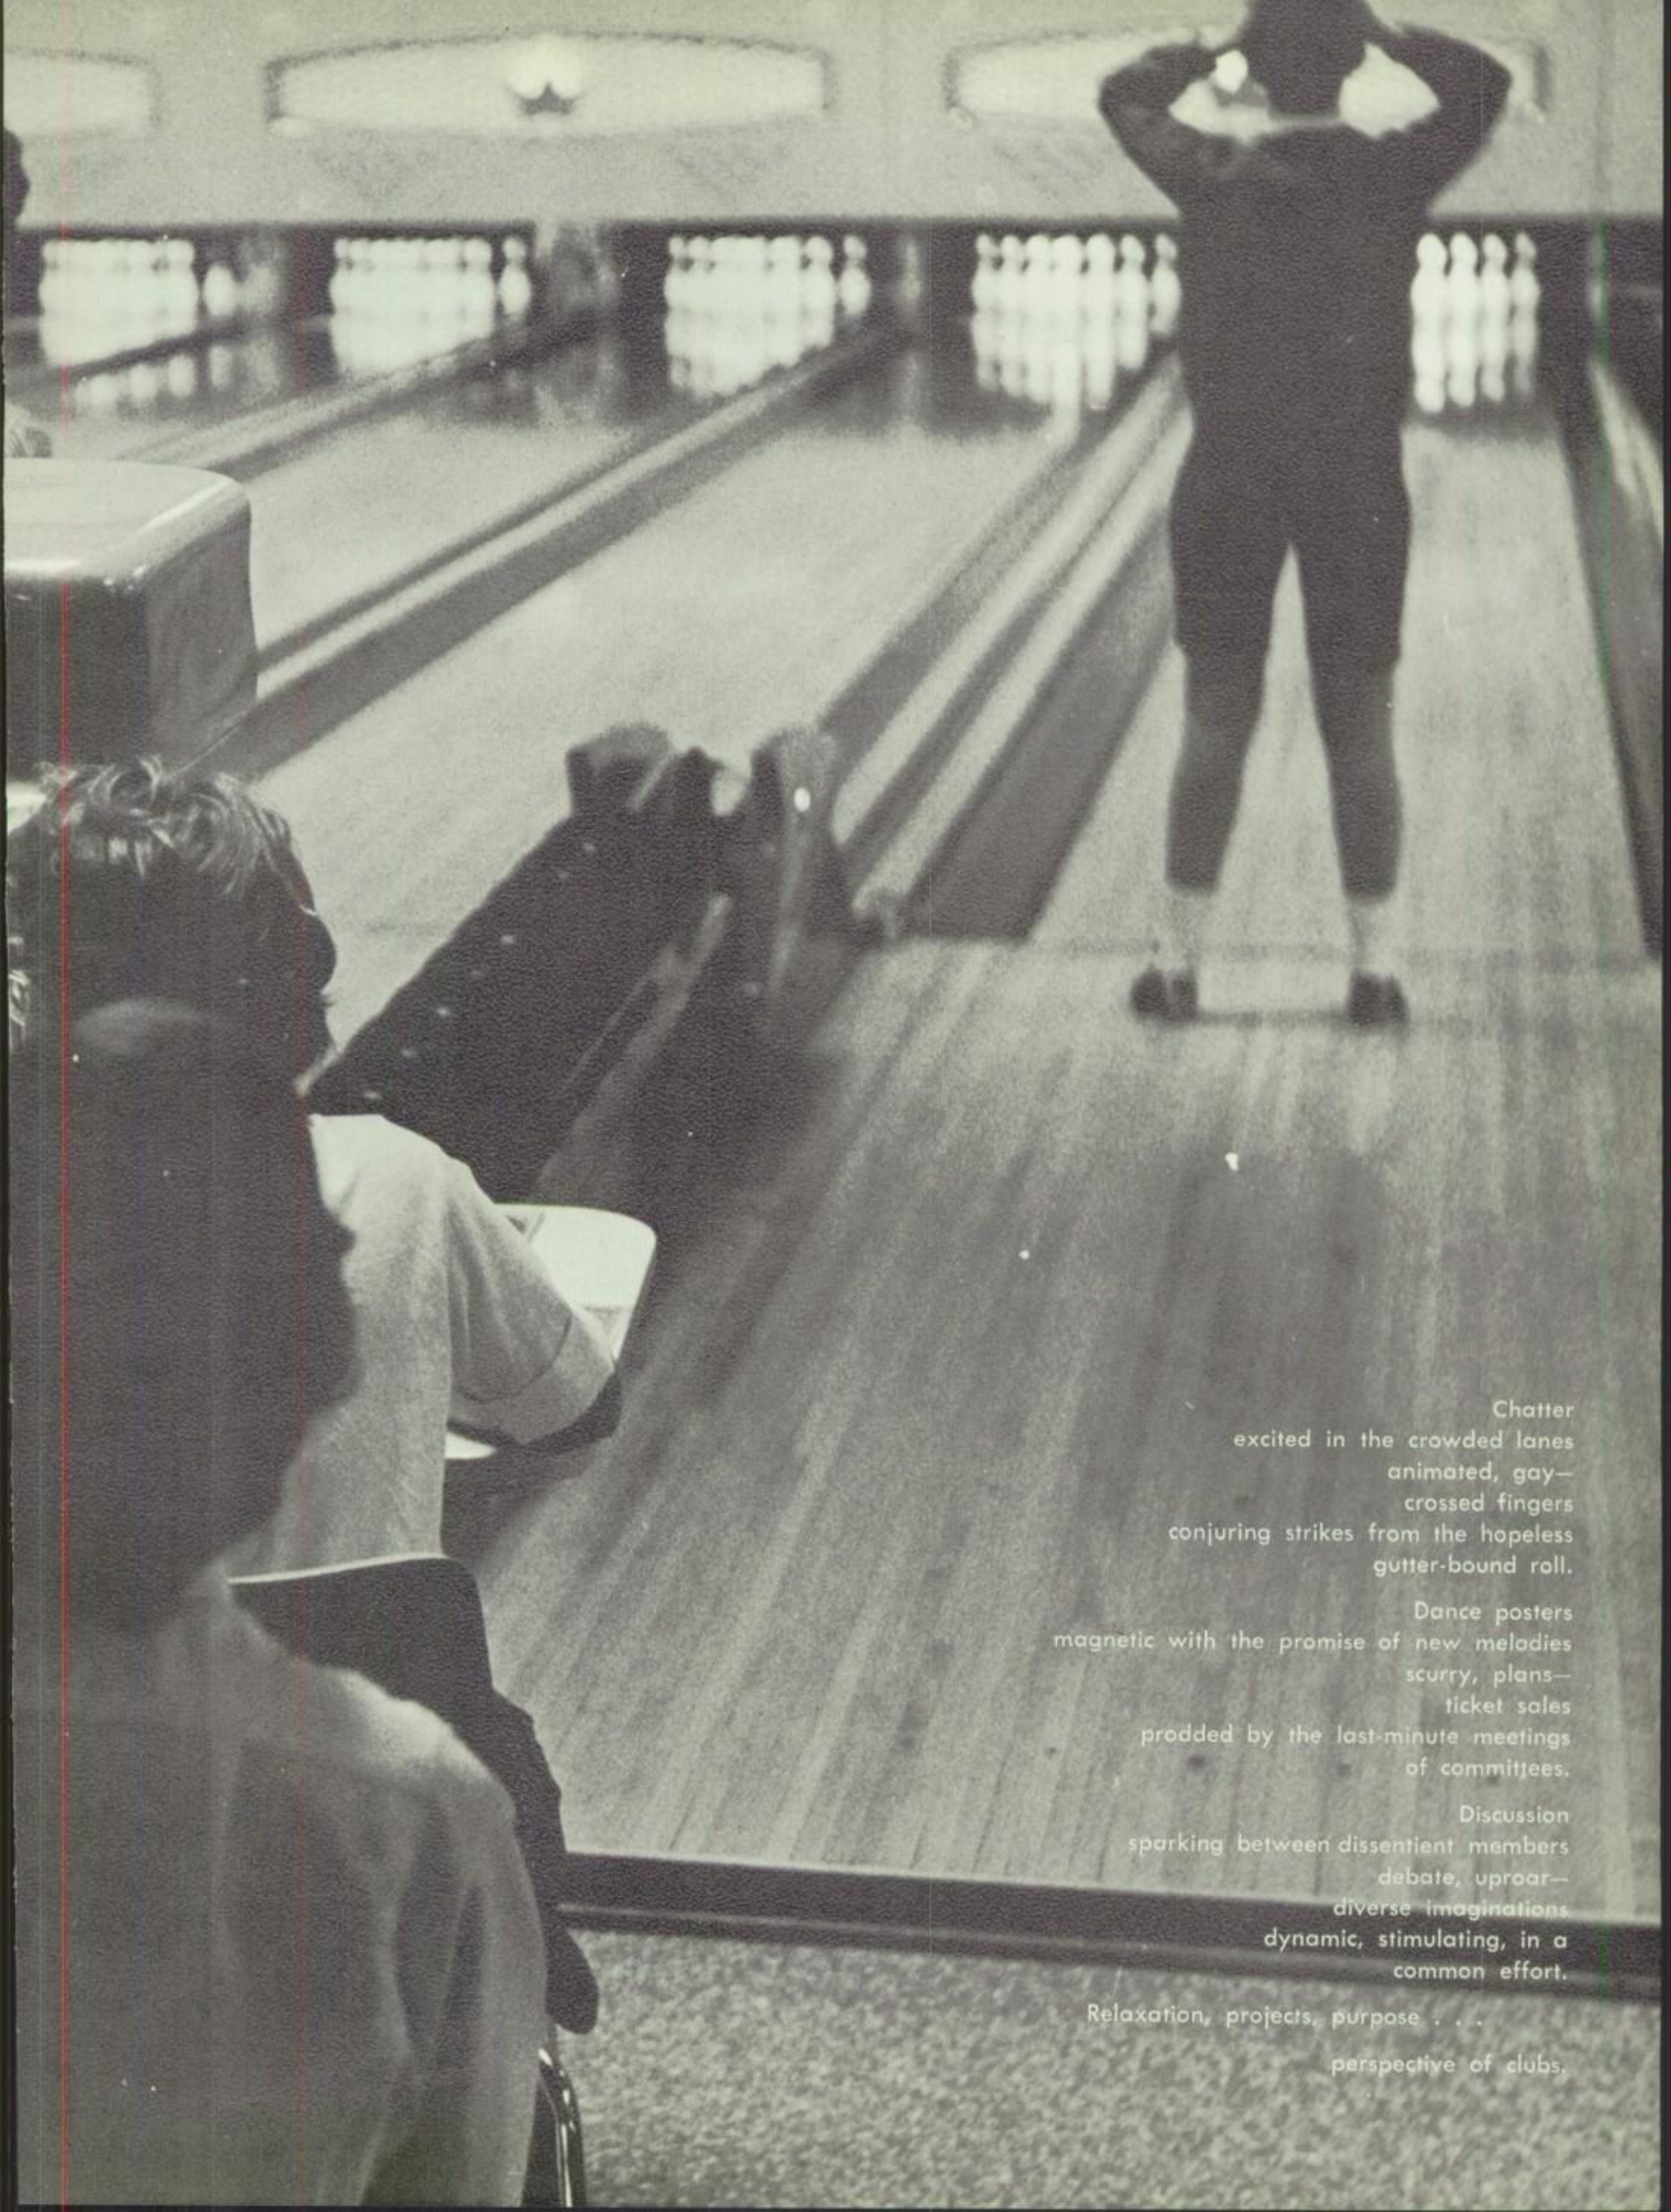

Mr. Harold Keables

South High's well-known and loved teacher, Mr. Keables, was nationally recognized this year. He was among the five outstanding secondary teachers in the country selected by Yale University to receive "The Distinguished Teacher's Award." During our Teacher's Convention he traveled to Yale to receive his award and $1,000. In addition, he was able to see several of his former students in the East. We congratulate Mr. Keables and once again express gratitude for his many contributions to the development of young minds.

Inter-Club Council

The governing body of clubs at South was Inter-Club Council. Each club elected a representative who met with the council and effected the policies regarding the activities of clubs. Organizing of meeting times, supplementing of club treasuries by Booster Button sales, and voting upon and acceptance of new clubs constituted the major activities of the council. School spirit was encouraged through I.C.C. activity in the school and community. Harmony was kept throughout organizations at South by Inter-Club Council, which prevented conflict in the conduct of club affairs and activities.

Gathered around a large brown table in Bob Ruble's basement, members of Johnny Reb Staff spent long week-ends during the year in the traditional working-session called "deadline." Activities included the tedious typing of membership lists, the drudgery of inventing inspiring captions for humorous candids, the heated debating of changes in layout, and the indecisive discussion of suggestions for cover design of the 1963 Johnny Reb.

After an enthusiastic publicity and sales campaign for the annual, editors, artists, photographers and writers began section by section to assemble the book. Finally in the spring when the last pages had been mailed, the staff sat back with sighs of relief. Their real success came in May with the long-awaited arrival of the 1963 Johnny Reb—South in Perspective.

Confederate Staff

The "S" stickers and Rebel head decals that South students displayed in their car windows were the product of sales promotion by the members of Confederate Staff. Every other Friday the sale of South's newspaper helped Southerners to become aware of current activities, achievements of fellow students, and future events. The aim of Confederate Staff was to present a cross-section of the life of Rebels. The bulletin boards in Room 166 were decorated with assignment sheets, calendars with deadlines clearly marked, cartoons and a rope with a noose at the end, aptly labeled "for emergency use only." With the help of their sponsor, Mr. Welch, staff members learned techniques helpful in vocations related to journalism.

Triple S

The juniors and seniors selected for membership in Triple S, South's Scholastic Society, represented the students of top scholastic standing. A record of five "A's" in academic subjects and no "C's" in any subject as a semester grade was necessary for membership. Meetings, which were not held on a regular basis, included information about college application and scholarships. The recognition of students of high scholastic achievement played an important part in the academic progress of Rebels.

Good luck! God bless you - Joy

A multitude of opinions are expressed by Triple S members under the leadership of Vice-President Mike Bragg and the sponsorship of Mr. Carr.

Organized on an international scale, Quill & Scroll is a club of distinguished students chosen for membership for their achievements in journalistic fields. Members of Confederate and Johnny Reb staffs who had contributed outstanding editing and writing to the school newspaper and annual were selected for membership in Quill & Scroll. Members enjoyed such benefits as the Quill & Scroll magazine, which offered suggestions and opportunities for improving their journalistic talents.

Junior Red Cross

With service to community and school as their foremost aim, the members of Junior Red Cross provided entertainment for the sick in hospitals during the Yule Season and sponsored the turn-about dance "Cupid's Beau" in February. Enthusiastic Southerners contributed everything from crying dolls to little red wagons to the Santa Claus Shop.

Members were glad to welcome back their sponsor, Mr. Lonsdale, who had been away on an educational leave. Under the influence of his leadership students learned the value of generous giving to those who are less fortunate.

Debate Club

Recognizing that the art of communication is a vital one to us and that expression of our thoughts and ideas to others is essential to modern life, students in Debate Club practiced the more formal forms of debate and extemporaneous speaking. They also learned to effectively communicate the ideas of others through the interpretative reading events.

Debate Club met with students from other Denver schools to compete for awards and National Forensic League points. Later in the year they met with contestants from elsewhere in the state to determine who would go to the national contest.

Debate Club held a Christmas party for its returning alumni the first Wednesday after Christmas and also gathered in a final "fling" for the signing of annuals in the spring.

Silence prevailed in the auditorium as students intently listened to the speaker during the Thanksgiving Assembly, planned and produced by Tri-Hi-Y. In addition to the programs of Youth and Government, Thanksgiving baskets and March of Dimes, the members instituted a new project, sponsoring Care Packages for support of the needy in foreign lands. Members had to have at least a 2.5 grade average, no "E's" as a semester mark in an academic subject and no truancies. Through Tri-Hi-Y girls learned how to "create, maintain and extend high standards of Christian character."

Hi-Y

Paralleling the function of Tri-Hi-Y was Hi-Y, a boy's service club at South. The two organizations jointly presented the Thanksgiving Assembly, held formal and informal initiation for new members, and participated in Youth and Government. At the State Capitol, members held a mock legislature and passed bills as a part of the process of learning the workings of the state government. Contribution to a healthful community through charitable projects such as food distribution at Thanksgiving helped the boys develop the standards of Christian character that were the aims of all members.

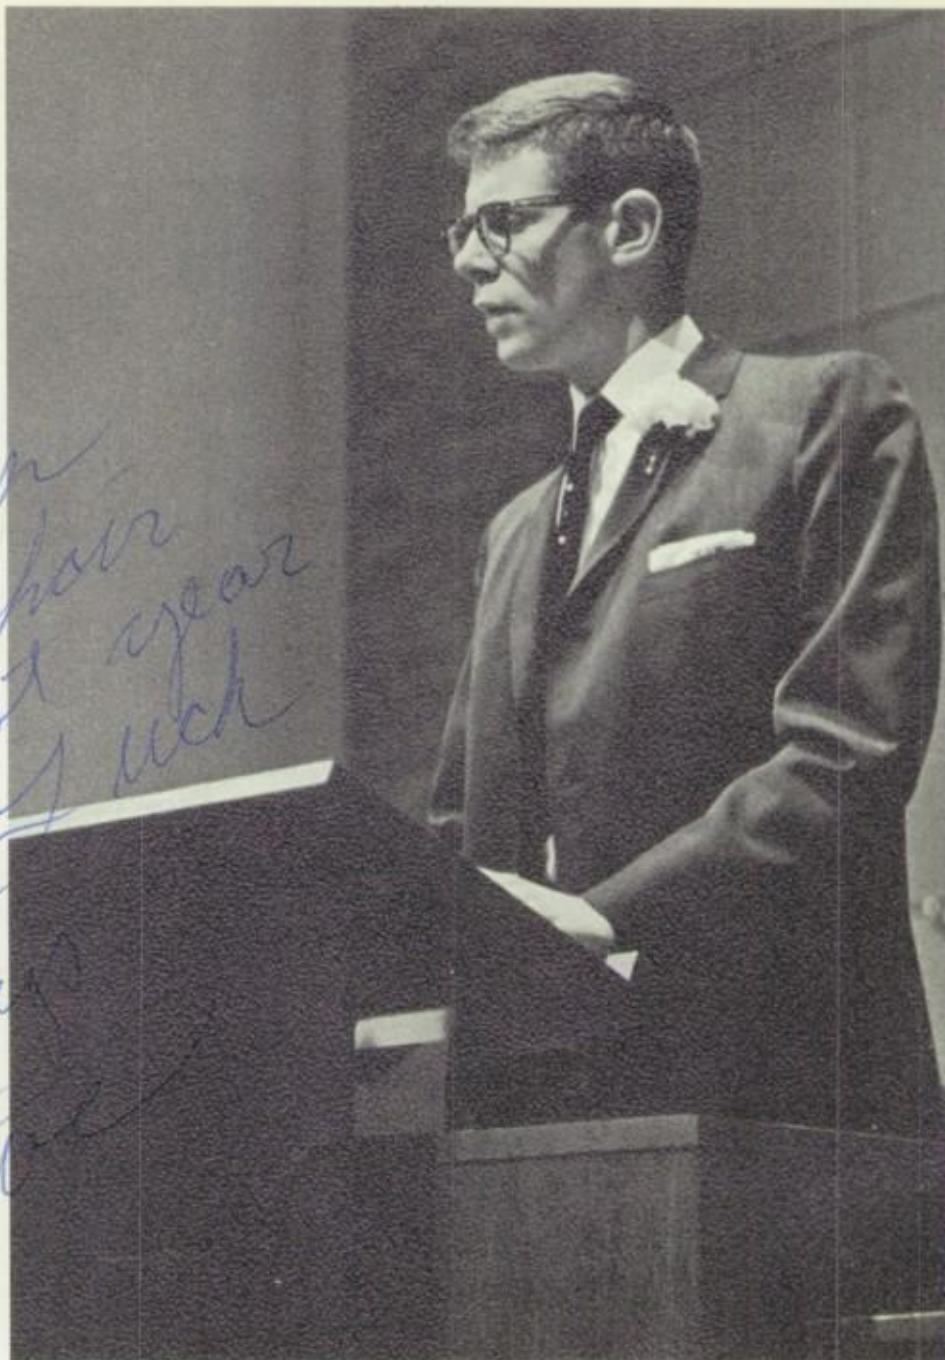

At their joint initiation Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y members listen to Pat Smith give the Invocation.

The purpose of Folio Leaves, South's creative writing club, was to discover promising writers and to give them experience and critical help in the writing field. Members wrote short stories, poems, and essays for the entertainment of the club. Amid the smiles and sobs created by imaginative plots, students learned the qualities and techniques of good writing. Highlights of the year included contests for the best Christmas story and the writing of a "Continued Story" to which each member contributed. The Rebels left their mark on the activities of South by writing the scripts for Color Day and by producing the annual magazine, Towers.

Science Club

Under the leadership of Mr. Lloyd Meech, activities such as tours of industrial factories, field trips to laboratories, and science fair projects were planned by the members of Science Club. Distinguished men of the scientific field spoke to the group and through their observations helped students to increase their knowledge of scientific developments. Programs of the club often included experiments and discussions which helped members perfect science skills. Original work by individual members won recognition in the Science Fair.

Members Bob Williams and John Krimmel cautiously conduct a possibly explosive experiment as other students watch.

Pre-Med Club

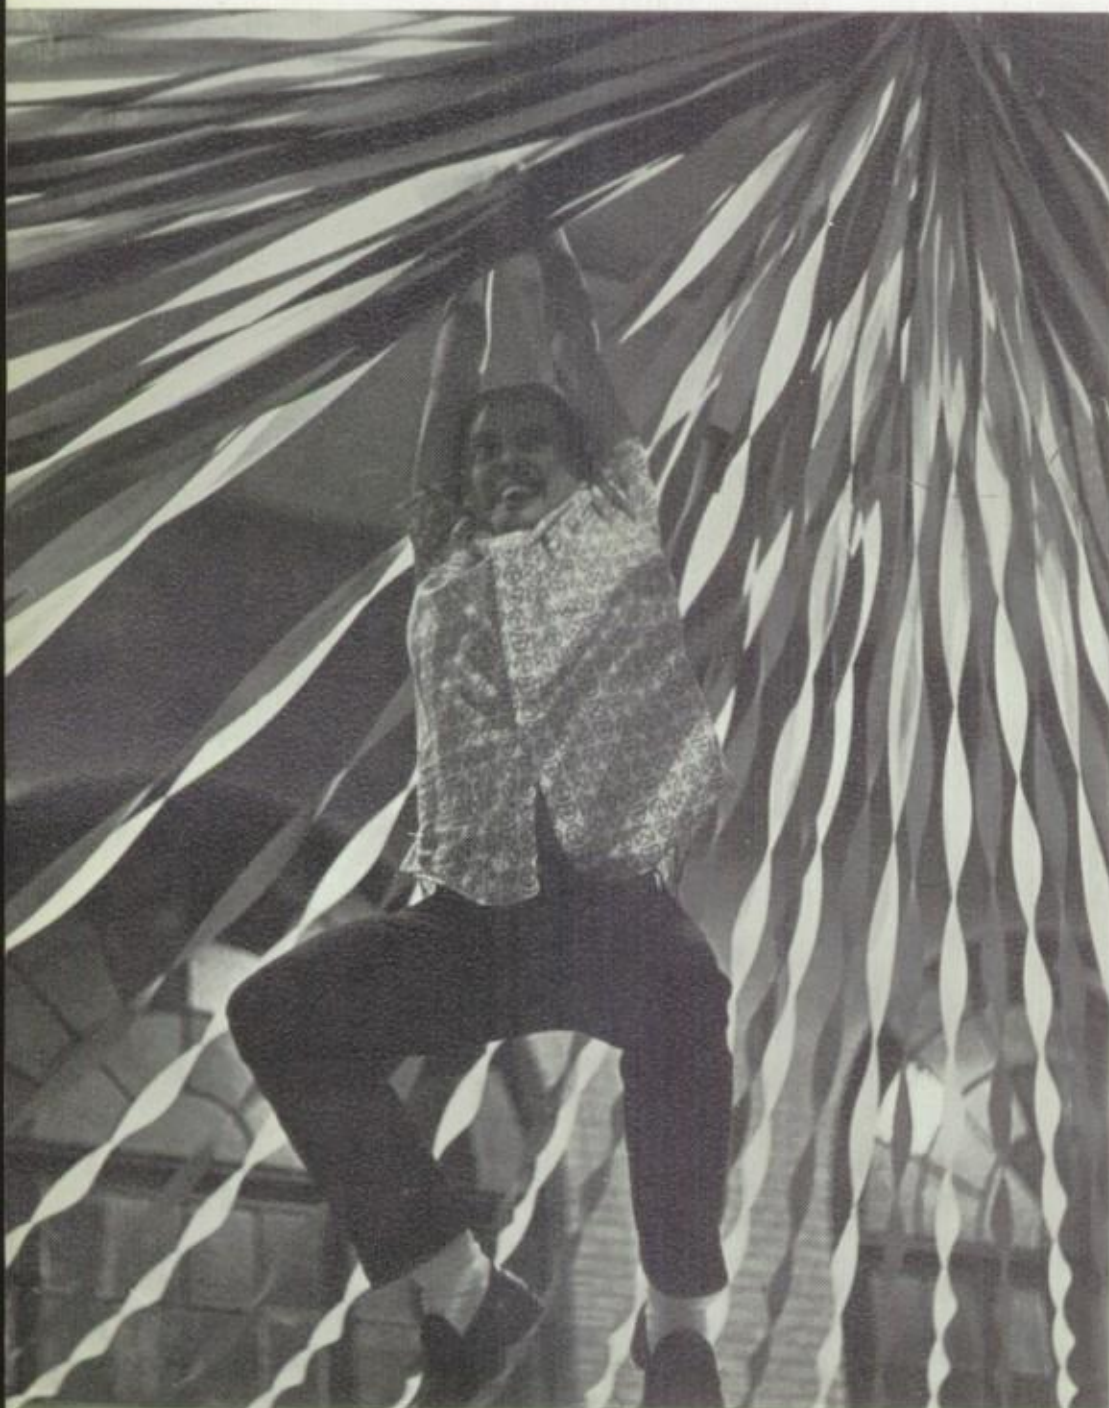

Because the field of medicine is vitally important and rapidly advancing today, students who wanted to join the ranks of professionals in their organized, scientific fight against disease brought their ideas and questions to Pre-Med Club. There they found the support and enthusiasm of classmates, teachers, and professionals who came to lecture the students on a more personal basis. The interests of the club covered nursing, medical technology, and veterinary science. Field trip visits to hospitals and laboratories were this year extended to include a veterinary clinic where students advanced their knowledge of the care of animals.

Pre-Med members listen as a guest speaker explains laboratory procedure and the use of modern equipment.

Rick Vafeades and friend illustrate "duck and cover" procedure to a third hour class.

Key Club

Students listened attentively last fall when Key Club members explained "duck and cover" procedures to all third hour classes. In addition to this project for school preparedness, Key Club held the ever-popular Key Klub Klomp on November 17. The group added to its treasury by selling beautiful polished gourds that they decorated and finished themselves. A main aspiration was to attend the national Key Club convention and to win the gold medal award given to larger schools of 1,000 students and over. To win this prize each club was rated on its contributions to school and community. With service to others as their aim, the boys of Key Club worked enthusiastically toward raising the standards and traditions of South.

Decorations for Key Klub Klomp are strung aloft by Elmer Cannady in preparation for the evening's festivities.

The audience was quiet in a hush of anticipation as the curtain rose on the latest production of the drama department. The Southern Masqueraders, who were a vital part of every performance, costumed the players, worked on props, publicized the play, and insured the smooth productions of which South High is proud. For their efforts these students earned points which counted toward the ten necessary for membership in National Thespians. In May the members put on their own program for class day and also entered state competition with a short condensation of a play. Members of Southern Masqueraders were an entertaining and talented part of South.

Future Teachers of America

Among the many interesting activities of F.T.A. throughout the year was the tutoring service offered by members. Students who had difficulty were given outside help from members of Future Teachers of America, who worked in close co-operation with teachers. In many activities such as grading papers and following class procedure, students learned some fundamentals for the teaching profession. As they became aware of the opportunities offered by teaching and learned different instructional methods from South faculty, Rebels in F.T.A. spread enthusiasm and support for teachers and their efforts at South.

Programs written by the "élèves" were presented four times a semester for the club and other guests. International Relations Club

Members of I.R.C. attended numerous conferences this year in an effort to understand current affairs and to formulate their own opinions in regard to them. They discussed foreign relations, domestic problems, and American youth in their meetings, which fell on alternating Tuesdays. Guest speakers as well as faculty were often present to offer differing views on the interesting topics.

Students became members of International Relations Club on the basis of teacher recommendation and a short composition in which they stated their reasons for wishing to join. Members found I.R.C. an ideal way in which to explore modern social and economic conditions.

Teen-Age Republicans

Every other Monday afternoon a group of enthusiastic Southerners gathered for discussion, for grass roots support of and for debate about the Republican party. Through work with Republican precinct personnel and captain leaders, students became better acquainted with political philosophy. Local elections as well as national contests strengthened Teen-Age Republicans' knowledge about their party and their government. Activities of the year included frequent trips to several organization headquarters in the city and visits with state party leaders. Because of this close connection with leading Denver Republicans, students could better defend the ideals and issues of their party.

The purpose of Young Democrats was to promote partisan interest in the ideals of the Democratic Party, to demonstrate the functions of the party machinery on a precinct level and to stimulate an interest in current affairs among students at South. Members promoted party spirit among Southerners during elections by wearing candidate's buttons and defending the Democratic side of elections. Participating in noteworthy political rallies, transmitting democratic concepts to foreign students, and attending the state legislature to voice opinions of the young blood of America were important activities of South's Young Democrats.

Students at South who wished to work during the school year were able to take advantage of job opportunities through Distributive Education. By attending classes during morning hours, members of the program were free during the afternoon to work. Through knowledge gained from their teacher, who kept close contact with employers, these teenagers became acquainted with the proper methods and attitudes for holding a job. They were given lectures by important figures in the business world and literature about vocational opportunities. By lively discussion with one another they learned how to succeed in their chosen fields.

Future Business Leaders of America

The newest club at South this year was Future Business Leaders of America, formed to support student interest in business careers. At organization meetings in the fall, members elected officers, formed policies, and wrote the club's constitution. The students participated in numerous field trips to local plants and offices. Speakers from vocations in business encouraged members at monthly meetings. Through the able leadership of Miss Kinney and Mrs. McGehee, members were able to give the young club an excellent and rewarding start.

Rebels who had a lively interest in skiing as a sport were encouraged to join the ranks of South's Ski Club. At an organization meeting in the fall, students were invited to join, officers were elected and plans for ski events were formulated. Throughout the winter season, members who wished to take the variety of trips to ski areas such as Winter Park, Loveland, or Arapahoe Basin were asked to sign their names to the sign-up list. Groups were then formed to go by bus to the mountains. Lessons were offered by more experienced members and almost everyone helped to instruct the newer "snow bunnies" at one time or another.

Aquads

Aquads, the girl's swimming club at South, accepted many interested new members this year. To join, girls had to dive in and swim the width of Celebrity swimming pool. Activities included development of swimming skills through help from more advanced swimmers, and improvement in diving and racing techniques. Members accepted challenges from other teams in the city and worked toward possible championships. Under the able leadership of President Mayling Pemberton, Aquads shared many exciting and rewarding experiences in their sport.

After a year of inactivity, South's Folk Song Club resumed its bi-weekly meetings this fall. Students who enjoy singing and listening to folk songs were invited to join. Activities included informal parties at which enthusiasts entertained each other with folk music from many different countries. Members introduced less well-known songs to the group and contributed them to the club's library of folk songs and their origins. Some members, accompanied by the ringing chords of a guitar, participated in the All-School Show by singing several folk songs of rare and haunting quality.

Chess Club

Each Wednesday afternoon after school a lively group of Rebels gathered for the weekly meeting of Chess Club. These students participated in friendly chess competition among themselves and taught interested new members how to play the game. After practice during the fall and winter months, chess players were ready for the challenge of matches with other city schools. Success was attained only by work with rules and special plays of the game.

"S" Club

Familiar shouts of "Yea South! Yea Team!" echoed at the Letter Awards Assemblies, presented in the fall and spring by members of "S" Club. Athletes who had earned their purple letter in sport competition were eligible for "S" Club membership. High standards of citizenship, sportsmanship, and leadership were encouraged through service to the school. Friendships with sports enthusiasts and rivalry with leading lettermen throughout the city extended experience in and appreciation of physical competition. In March the members held the annual "S" Club dance, "Athletes' Feat." Through support of South in sports, these boys earned championships which gave to South the cry of "Victory!"

A friendly Rebel yell often broke the silence of concentration when a member of the bowling team scored a strike. South's boy bowlers scored or did not score each Tuesday afternoon at Celebrity Lanes. Their practice increased skills and coolness under pressure that were a vital asset during tournaments. Bowlers competed in the Aurora Invitational Tournament in the fall, Junior Invitational Team Tournament, and the National Mail-o-Graphic Tournament held in the spring. Improved scores bowled in tough competition encouraged each bowler.

Friendly rivalry and lively enthusiasm among Rebel Rollers were obvious during their informal meetings on Wednesday nights at Skateland. Help and encouragement among members prepared each of them for the important test of their skating ability in inter-school competition. The winning of a trophy for achievement in relay racing with other Denver high schools was the aim of the skaters. Perfection of figure skating skills and improvement of all the basic skate routines provided the roller fans with an exciting and eventful year.

Rebalte

In its third year of activity, Rebalte, South's Girls' Tennis Club, used weekly meeting nights to develop tennis skills. Beginning players were given the opportunity to learn from more experienced members of the club. Enthusiastic matches were held at Washington Park until the winter snows prevented further activity. In the spring, the girls began again, determined to succeed in tournament competition. Students with interest in tennis were asked to join and to take part in the various activities of this sports-minded club.

Beth Kullhem brings her own football player to the Homecoming dance, held in the boys' and girls' gyms.

Pep Club girls in purple skirts and white blazers spent their time enlivening the school spirit of South during games and rallies throughout the year. In the fall such events as the Homecoming Dance and half-time drill at the game, Sophomore Tea, sale of shakers and athletic tickets, and attendance at football games were sponsored by members of Pep Club. South girls enjoyed the Spring Fashion Show presented in April. Pep Club members also ushered for various school programs. In addition to their many projects, Pep Club enthusiastically led the support of school sports activities.

Six girls were always welcomed by shouts of enthusiasm from Rebels on stage at School or along the track in front of the stands. The Pom-Pon Girls worked hard during the summer to create the lively dances which encouraged the continuing rise of pride in school and team at every game and rally. This group, composed of three junior and three senior girls, was often joined by the school mascot, the little brother or sister of one of the students, complete with tiny crepe pom-poms. The student body showed admiration and affection for these girls by naming them familiarly, "the Pom-Pom Girls."

Occupying the highest rung of the sequence of South's vocal musical organizations, the members of Concert Choir worked hard to retain their reputation as a very fine choir. Their fame spread beyond the appreciation of fellow students and gained them many an invitation to perform in the local community. Their performances proved to be inspirations that both students and other audiences will never forget. A large share of the credit due to Concert Choir stems from the excellent direction of Mr. Wells, who worked equally with all choir members to attain highest quality performances.

The gay tunes played by South's Concert Band, gaily uniformed in purple and white, devastated the spirits of rival schools and spurred the Rebels on to win games. Talented soloists entered the festival at Denver University, and were rated according to their abilities. In addition, the Band played at numerous occasions in both the school and the community, charming their audiences with their lively numbers.

Reserve Officer Training Corps

John Manion
Battle Group Commander

Directly after World War I, the Reserve Officer Training Corps was formed and has since expanded into what is now a very vital part of high school activities in schools throughout the nation. Boasting a corps including four companies, a rifle team, drill team, color guard, and one select group of honorary cadets, South High is no exception to this advancement of military training. Each member joins the program knowing that he will become an active participant in pre-military training such as discipline, courtesy, and use of equipment. Patriotism and good citizenship are included along with courses in first aid and army procedure. A graduate of the R.O.T.C. has the opportunity to continue in the program as a commissioned officer.

Every year the teams and divisions of the corps participate in competitive activities. Rifle Team is an active member of the Round Robin competition between other teams of the Denver area. Drill Team also competes against other R.O.T.C. units, and Color Guard posts the flags at assemblies and athletic events. Not to be forgotten is the social side of the R.O.T.C., the annual military ball.

Strangeness
felt through the rush of days hesitant, puzzled—
the uncertain initiate pushing through crowded halls of unfamiliar faces.

Meaning
slowly growing from confusion activity, studies—
the eager participant caught in the hectic bustle of each day.

Happiness
filling the joyous hours friendship, smiles—
the newly secure finding importance through his work and play.

Bewilderment, growth, significance . . .
perspective of sophomores.

D.A.R. Award

Carolyn Petersen

As Outstanding Senior Girl, Carolyn Petersen was presented with the D.A.R. Award. Through elections by the Seniors she represented her class as the Senior Class Vice-President and served on Student Council and Class Council. Known for her impromptu talks on school spirit, Carolyn tirelessly supported her class and school through various activities in Tri-Hi-Y, Pep Club, I.R.C., and Ski Club. An Honorary Cadet and Annual Staff Activities Editor, she participated fully in the affairs of South, winning the respect and friendship of classmates and faculty.

Kiwanis Award

The Kiwanis Award for Outstanding Senior Boy was presented to Jon Lundquist. Nominated by the Senior Class, Jon was selected for his outstanding citizenship and scholarship. Through effective service to his school, Jon has distinguished himself primarily in student government. As Sophomore Representative, Junior Class President, and Head Boy, he contributed his talents to Student Council and Class Council and devoted time to many clubs including Red Cross, Key Club, Triple S, Concert Choir and Spanish Club. Jon has been a memorable leader.

Selection of Rebel Rousers

Although there are many members of the senior class who have made worthwhile contributions in athletics, academics, and club work, we do not have the room to recognize each one. The fourteen individuals pictured on the following pages were chosen by vote of the faculty as the Rebel Rousers of 1963. By their achievements and personality these honored seniors have helped to maintain the wonderful school spirit and high standards of character at South High School.

Senior Memories

Fullfillment
sought through the fleeting years
friends, scholarship—
newfound interests kindling the fuel in a sophomore mind.

Treasures
stored in the Indian summer days experience, fellowship—fragmented hours reluming gay dreams of the middle year.

Shadows
soft in the empty hall
quiet, solitude—
the proud mementos holding one pensive as commencement nears.

Attainment, reflection, nostalgia . . .
perspective of memories.

Senior Memories

We anxiously came to South and began to adjust quickly to our new school. As we enthusiastically elected officers and selected a class council, the sophomores became known to the upperclassmen. Led by the new officers and our able sponsors, the Class of '63 energetically participated in the many enjoyable activities of the school. The end of our first exciting year came too soon, but we eagerly anticipated the worthwhile opportunities that the next two years at South High held for us.

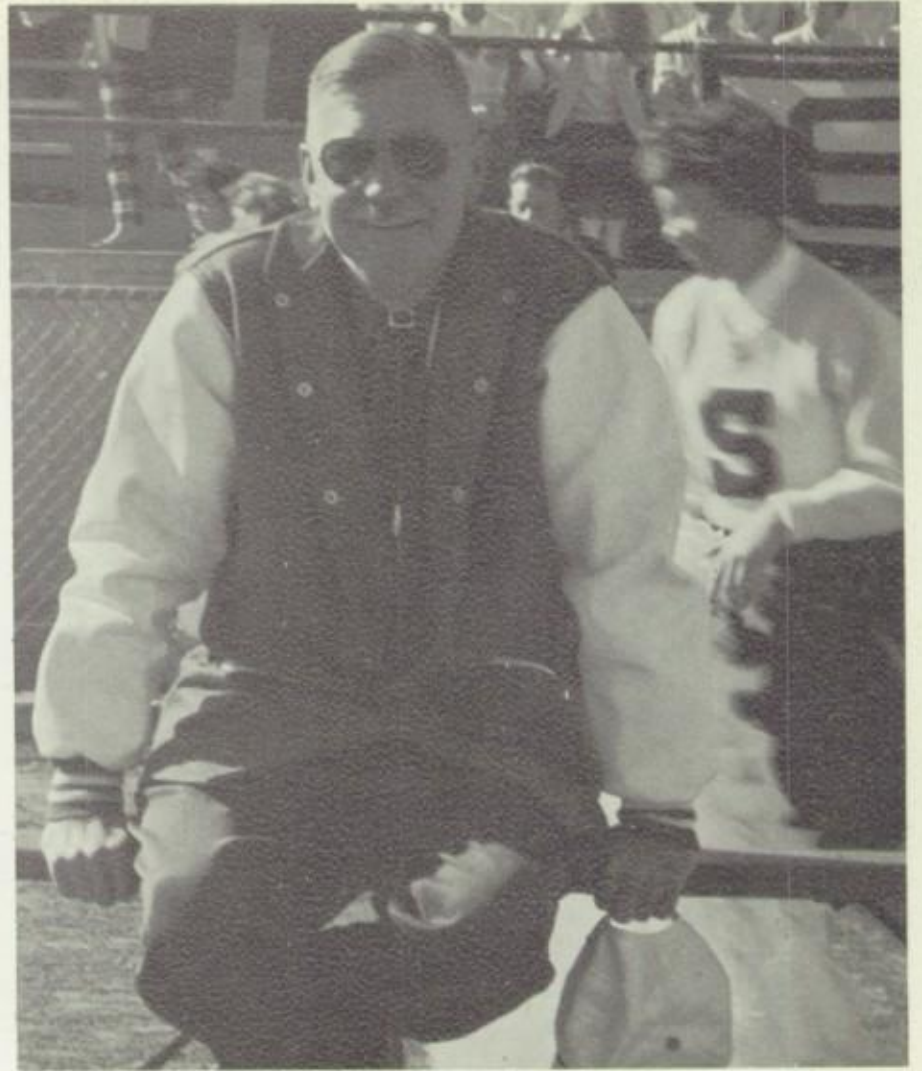

Miss Elmira Cannady, famed hula girl, danced at our sophomore party to strains of exotic island melodies.

Sponsors Mrs. Butefish and Mr. Brower guided our class through unfamiliar pathways during its first year.

New to South, as we were, Dr. Anderson proved to be a friend and a leader to the Rebel horde.

Jill Scheu and Sandy Rees join other Rebels in a gay alpine dance during "An Enchanted Evening with Oscar Hammerstein"—All-School Show '61.

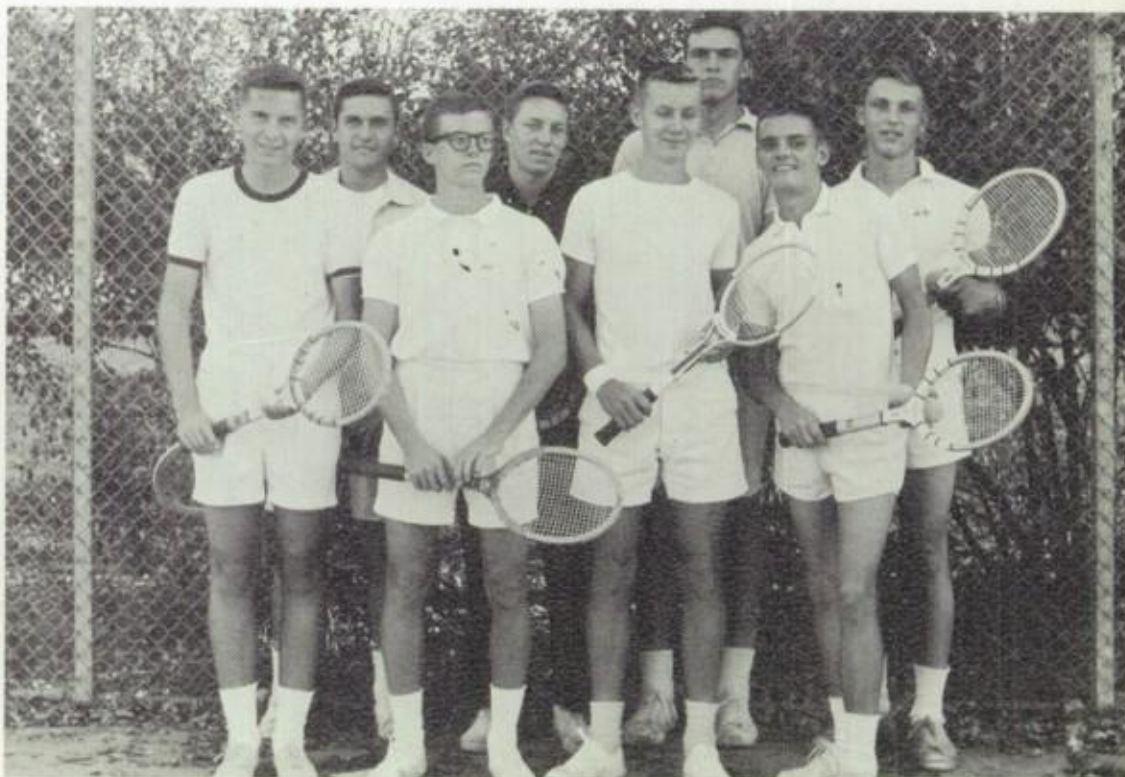

Carolyn Stasica and Nancy Thomas were Princesses to our Junior Color Day Queen, Mary Jo Ayer.

A favorite trio, Beth Allred, Donna Kelly and Ruth Larson entertained at our second All-School Show, "South Terrific."

The South tennis team took State our junior year and went on to capture the title again in the fall of 1962.

We came back to South with a year of experience and recognition behind us, eagerly looking forward to the challenge of our junior year. With excellent leadership and a co-operative spirit we prepared for the work and exciting activities. The Junior-Senior Prom, "An Evening in Ecstasy," the All-School Show, "South Terrific," and the seniors' Class Day put on by our juniors were a few of the memorable projects that filled our school year.

Princess Bobby Lou Moritz, Queen Jill Scheu and Princess Loretta Forbes reigned for our class at the Senior-Junior Prom.

Dr. Anderson gives a pep talk at a basketball rally.

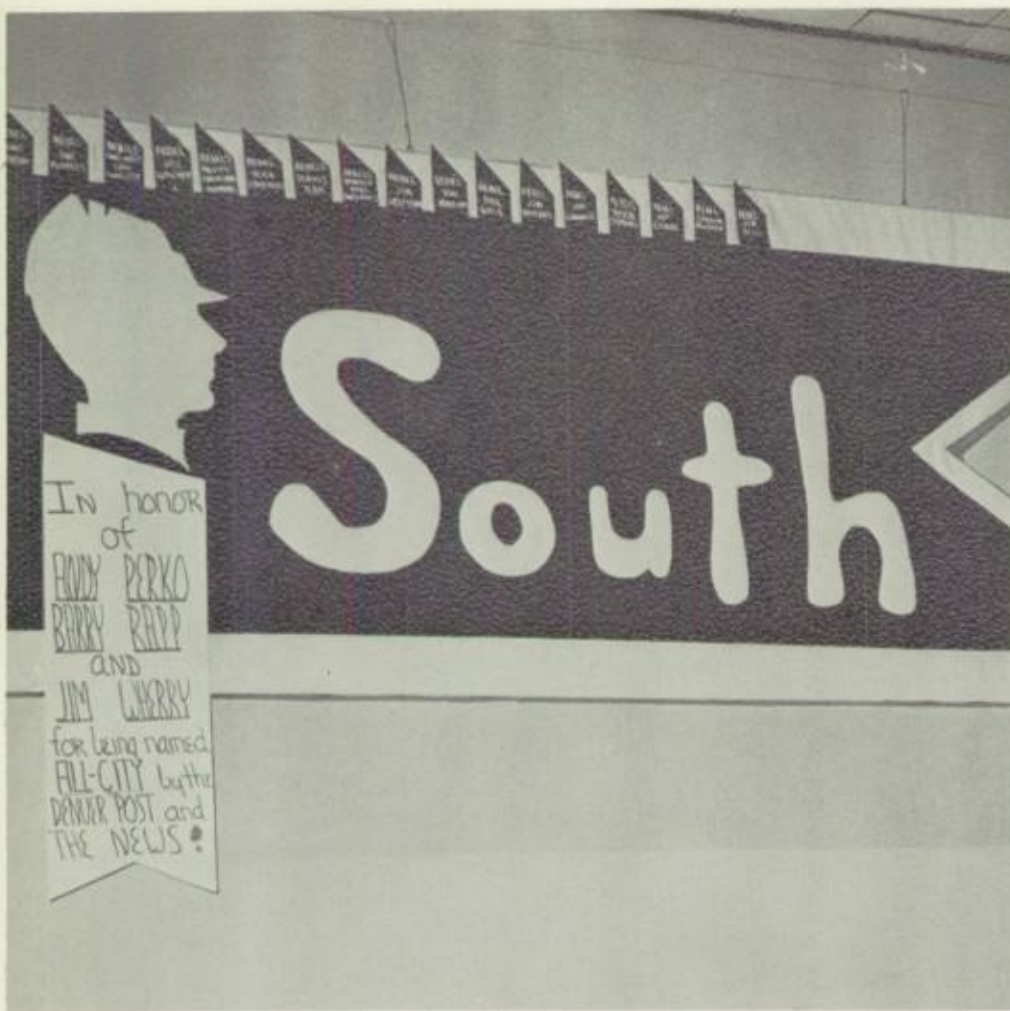

In our senior year it fell upon our shoulders to protect the sacred tradition of Senior Hall from the masses.

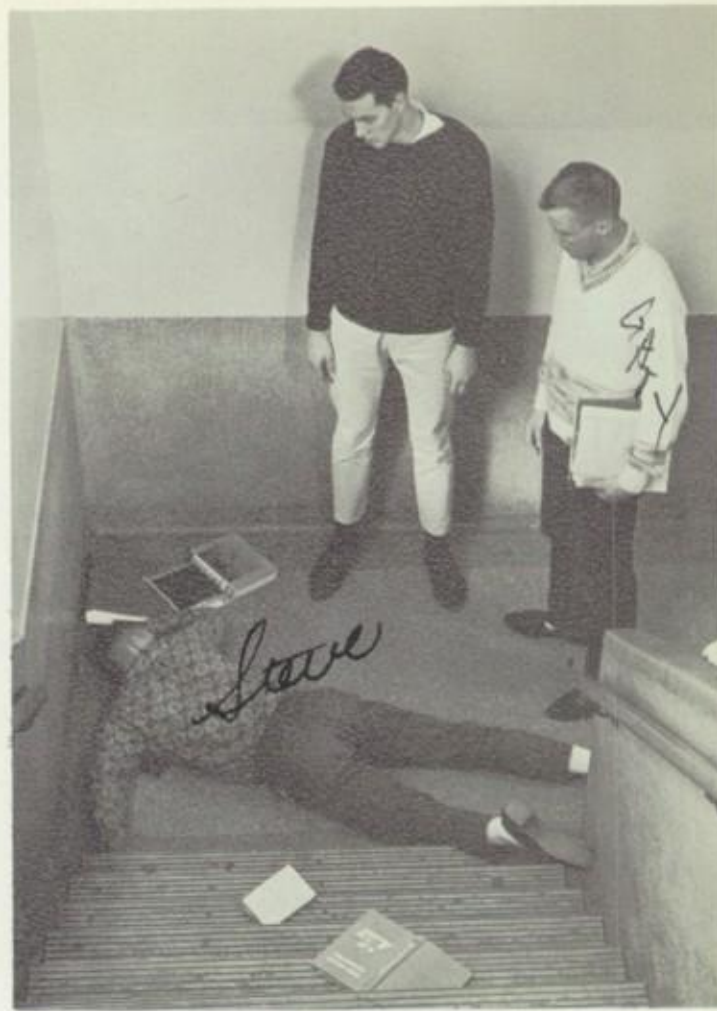

To an outstanding person — you're always so happy and nice to be around! The very best of everything Lin. See you next Christmas — Always, Dottie #

Steve Sargent makes the most of his role in "Kind Lady."

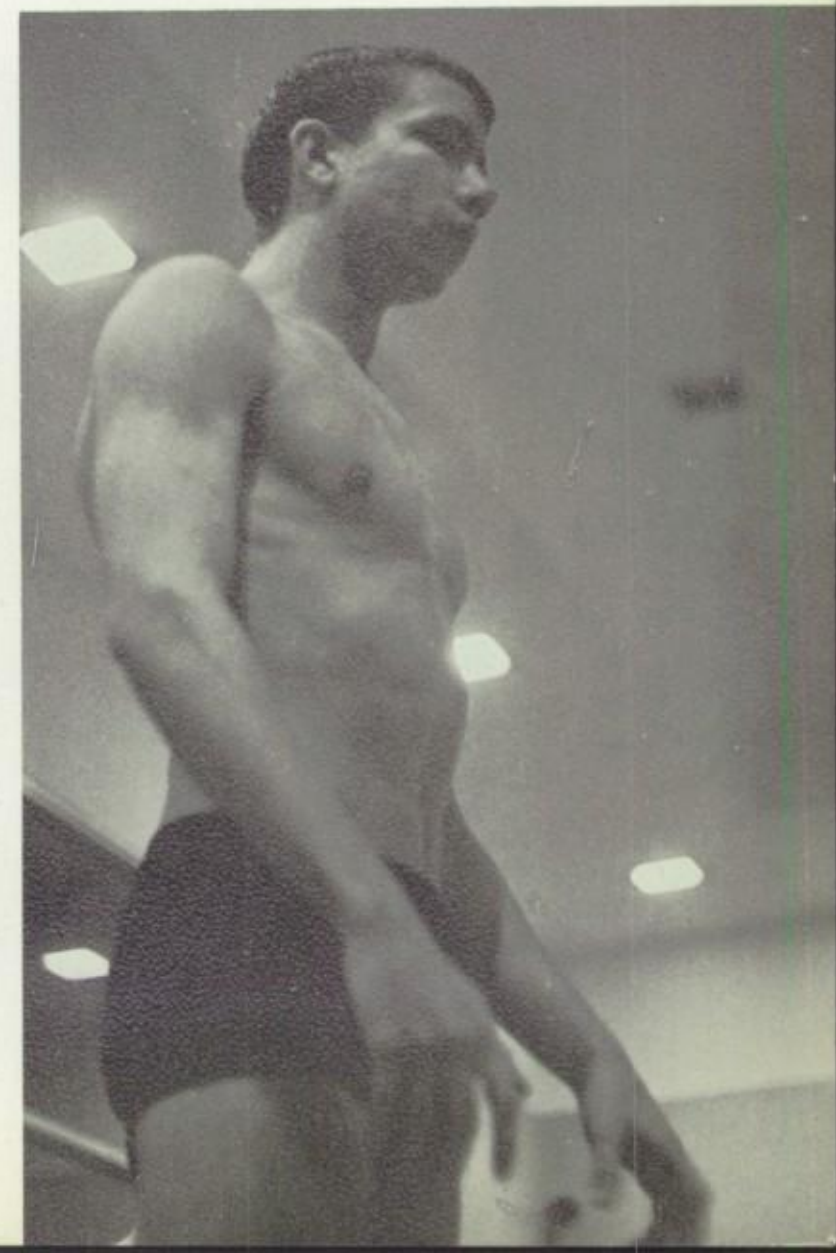

On the Honor Banner went many memorable names.

"Haven't they moved him yet?"

Through the tireless efforts of people such as Carolyn Petersen, the Seniors won the annual Good Will drive.

For the second year in a row, South's swim team took State.

The Pom Pon girls added spirit and interest to every rally and game with their high-stepping, fast-moving dances.

As we neared the state basketball tournament, fiery school spirit coursed throughout the building.

Sweaters aptly lettered "Rebels" marked our attractive, peppy cheerleaders wherever they went.

Senior honorary cadets were Jill Scheu, Nancy Thomas, Ruth Larson, Corinne Rider, Sheri Wiedeman, Carol Havekost, Carolyn Petersen, and Karen Erickson.

Our class officers for our senior year were Carolyn Petersen, Jim Hill, and Judy Borga.

Kristin Williamson and Marili Giuliano, foreign exchange students to and from Italy, respectively, trade views on each other's countries.

The Avez Vous dance line was a happy close to our last All-School Show, "Stars in My Eyes."

Ginny,

It is really great how after six years, again we are friends reunited. We met in Granby, at Shadow Mountain Ranch for just one week, and here it is over six years later and we enjoy each others company on Thanksgiving Day, 1963. Your folks are swell, you're so lucky!

You are really a swell kid, and deserve the very best of everything. Best of luck in all your music. (Play that organ.)

Always save a wee little space in your heart for ole "Pioneer Pete," as he has for a swell friend has ~~for~~ you.

May God bless you and keep you throughout your life. Much luck always.

Love to you,

Bob

P.S. - as you slide down the banister of life, remember ole "Pete" as a mere splinter in your career.

Into the production of a yearbook go the talents and energy of many people.

In Memoriam

James G. Custer
William C. Hedberg
William R. Lemke
Daniel A. Nordquist

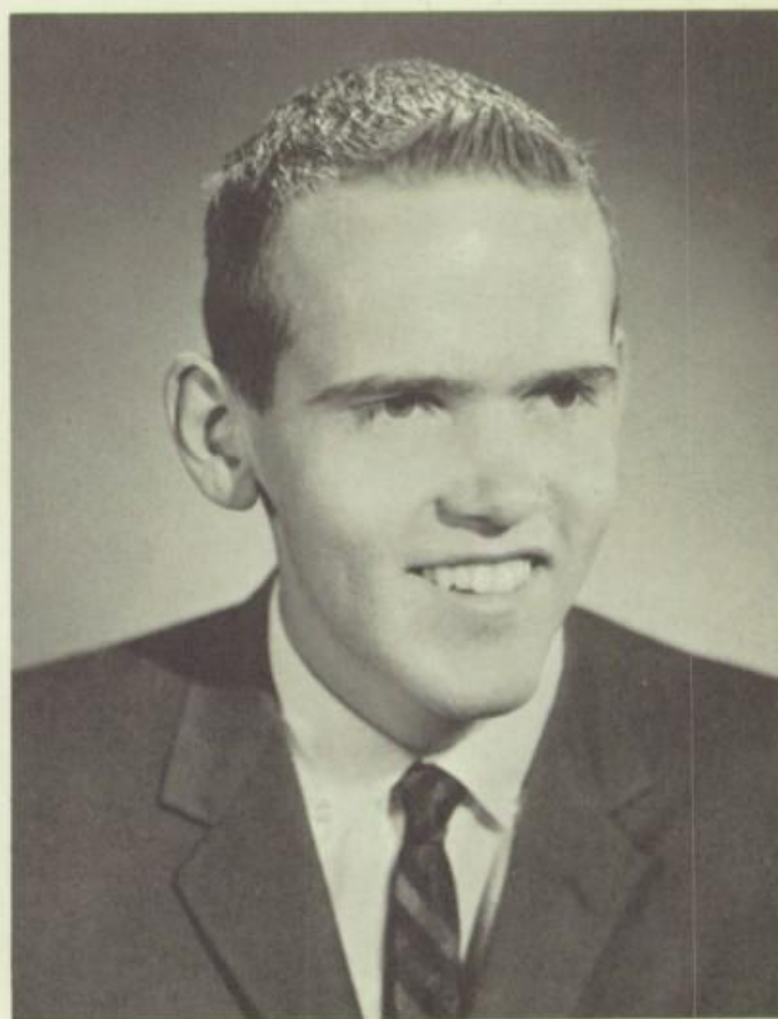

Above, us, towering black against the sun-drenched sky,
Thought's citadel; a fortress in eternal time,
A monument to searching minds of youth—
A growing consciousness, expanding worlds.

Lost innocence; a martyr gone to wisdom's cause
Of ready youths; the strong against fell circumstance,
And seeking in chaotic mists beyond strange stars.

On April 9, 1963, South lost one of her finest young men when William C. Hedberg was killed in a fall in the rugged mountains he loved. But Bill will never be gone from the pages of this book. This book is the life of Bill Hedberg—1963. As Head Photographer, most of the photography is his, and every picture will be enjoyed with the thought of Bill in our hearts. The energy, the initiative, the hard work and the photographic creativity in this annual are the story of Bill's life.

Often we do not realize the amount of love and admiration that we have for a friend until that friend is gone. Bill could be found wherever he was needed, and not until now have we even approached the degree of gratitude owed to him. Bill was a boy of intelligence, of genuine personality and generosity. An outstanding member of the Key Club, Chess Club, the Senior Class Council and Quill & Scroll, he had also been a member for three years of the honorary Triple S Club. He gave a memorable performance in the All-School Show in his senior year. The amount of time and effort he devoted to South High School through the Johnny Reb was both immeasurable and indispensable. It is here that Bill will live on in his work and creation.

Giddy. is a real nice I like very much. I'll always remember you and the future we had
and ring is round a smile for no end! My dear friends is the help that cuts boys; I hope really get what you want on your life. Luck
+ success in your God!
future or friend may Bless you!
